INTRODUCTION

"All human beings not utterly savage long for some information about past times."—Lord Macauley.

"It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who are regardless of their ancestors . . . do not perform their duty to the world."—Daniel Webster's speech, Dec. 22, 1845.

"Reverence for parents is essential to a sound moral character." It follows that those who are indifferent and careless in this respect must lack some at least of the elements of a sound moral character. They are gone. As time passes on it is natural that we will more and more cherish their memory. I have labored to rescue from oblivion the names of those who have gone before us, and to place land marks where they resided: that those of us who now live, and those who come after us, may answer to the question: "Who was your father."

Daniel Webster (He needs no titles of honor to mark his rank, for he was the embodiment of all that was great in man.) said: "It is a noble faculty of our nature which enables us to connect our thoughts, our sympathies and our happiness with what is distant in place or time, and looking before and after to hold communion at once with our ancestors and our posterity. There is also a moral and philosophical respect of our ancestors which elevates the character and improves the heart next to the sense of religious duty and moral feeling. I hardly know what should bear with stronger obligations on a liberal and enlightened mind, than a consciousness of our alliance with excellence which is departed; and a consciousness, too, that in its acts and conduct, and even in its sentiments and thoughts it may be actively operating on the happiness of those that come after it."

Genealogical research in this country is quite different from that in England. There it is to connect one's self with distinguished families, or to ascertain one's right to title or estate. Here it can only be to connect themselves with the earliest, the best, the purest days of New England. Such studies must have good moral effect. We are carried back to a consideration of the high aims, pure mother's severe trials, and exhausting labors, and the noble character of the fathers of our commonwealth. We are lead to a more just appreciation of our present privileges, and of those free institutions which cost so much sacrifice and suffering. Those men were not perfect, but they came to these inhospitable shores and founded institutions of government and religion which will never perish.

To compile the genealogical and historical parts of this work and bring it within suitable limits, is not an easy task; some things must be omitted that might properly form a part; to decide what to admit and what to omit, is perplexing. The original purpose of the writer was to prepare only a record of the line of descent to himself. The task has occupied more or less time for a number of years in writing to individuals, searching libraries, records of towns, registry of deeds and probate, church records, family bibles, cemeteries, etc. My researches in England were not as successful as I had hoped; much from want of financial means to employ experts to examine old records, which I did not feel competent to undertake, and the need of more time, being obliged to return to mechanical work which gave me support.

The name "Tilson" has long been known in England, Scotland and Ireland. It is identified with their early histories, and held prominent positions in society. The first certain knowledge we have of the name is from records of ancient heraldry, when aristocracy invested badges to distinguish the different degrees of family greatness, each spelled the name in a different way, and were considered distinct families. In most cases the name was spelled with one l. Some thought two ll's looked better, so by common consent both ways are in use, even where families have only been separated two or three generations. In my great-grandfather's bible, the record of births give only one l; my grandfather used only one l in his signature; some have requested that only one l be used in their branch. It has been difficult to decide which course to pursue; personally I would prefer to adopt one l. While I have not been able to get the information most desired, I have but little doubt that Edmond Tilson of Plymouth, 1638, was the Edmond Tilson mentioned in the history of Boston, England; but the works I have consulted show such discrepancies that I cannot place full reliance upon the statements they contain. Edmond Tilson was evidently a man of some consequence in the colony, and it is a source of gratification to his descendants that their families have been here long enough to help make the history this country has. In tracing our ancestry it has been found they were intelligent for the times; they were industrious and frugal toilers of the soil. It has been observed that some of the branches of several generations have exhibited a strong desire for intellectual persuits, and both male and female have been devoted and eminent teachers. The name Tilson has not become very numerous. The writer notes with pleasure the freedom from crime and degradation; and of the high moral and religious elements which have entered into the lives of their posterity. They do not seem to have possessed much desire for political and social place. I find them of respectability generally, and to be represented in the higher walks of life.

To honor and applaud the noble acts and successes of our kindred is an incentive to the living to make a record that will merit the respect of and be cherished by generations to come. One who has never prepared a work of this kind cannot begin to comprehend the difficulties. At nearly the age of 74, and in very poor health, I fully realize that I am incompetent for this work, but the duty devolves upon me to present in some form. I hope the time spent has not been in vain, and trust my kindred scattered through the land will find some satisfaction in following through successive generations their ancestry. The many pages following which may be considered historical should be more properly compiled, but sickness prevents, and the reader will please accept as it appears in the book in a disconnected way. It has been placed in the order of years, as events occurred. There are many faults in the construction of this work. Its main purpose is to preserve records and assist in tracing families and their relation to each. It is not intended for critics.

In closing I wish to express my gratitude for the generous deeds of Mr. George W. Tilson of New York, and Mr. Henry M. Rowe of Boston, Mass., who financed the greater part of the cost of printing this genealogy, and without their assistance it could not be printed. To those two persons more than to any, do I feel under obligations for the accomplishment of this work.

Tilson Genealogy

William, the Conqueror, gave the earldom of Chester to his nephew, Hugh Lupas, that monarch accompanied him as far as Malpas, where he invested him with the sovereignty of the country, and the Earl then marched toward Chester and took the city after having been thrice repulsed. In 1724 his remains were found in the chapter house of the Cathedral encased in stone in undisturbed security, over six hundred years, wrapped in leather; at the head of the coffin a stone, his name cut thereon. His sword is in the British Museum, and is nearly four feet long and heavy as to require much strength to brandish it. He died in 1101.

The castle at Chester was built by William the Conqueror, and occupied by Sir Hugh Lupas. The Barony of Malpas was given to Robert of Malpas, son of Hugh of Normandy. In which barony was Tilston.

Tilston appears to have been the most important and populous ville within the barony of Malpas with the exception of Christleton at the time of the Doomsday Survey. It formed a part of the great Barony of Malpas, and as such noticed in the survey. The township of Tilston is within the jurisdiction of the leets of Malpas, four miles northwest. William de Malpas released to Eynion, son of Richard de Tilston for his homage, these lands in Tilston, which he had of the gift of Eynion Ap Cadugan. The Tilstons sold their lands piece meal to Robert and John de Codington in the time of Edward II., and afterwards it passed to the Belwards, and to David, the Bastard, from whom it descended to the St. Pierres and Cokeseys. Eventually passed through the Hill, Breaton (of Shocklack) and the King families to Cholmondeleys. About 1788, sold by them to John Leache of Carden, Esq., and descended to J. H. Leache, who resided there in 1890. A portion recovered by Isabella Delves from the Cokeseys passed to the Breatons, afterwards to the Drakes of Shardeloes. Tilston Heath Hall belonged to the family of Gardner in 1662. This moiety was held under the Malpas family by the Tilstons until the reign of Edward II. James Tilson, Esq., a descendant of Henry Tilson (chaplain to Lord Stafford, and afterwards Bishop of Elphin) purchased an estate in this hamlet in the middle of the last century, on which he built a spacious mansion in imitation of the pointed style, to which he gave the name of Bolesworth Castle. Mr.

Tilson being afterwards appointed consul to Cadiz, his house and estate was purchased by John Crewe, Esq., in 1763. It was resold to Aswald Moseley, Esq., and again by him to Thomas Tarldon in 1805. It is situated among the Broxton hills fronting toward Chester. The village of Tilston, 12 miles south of Chester, midway between Carden Hall and Malpas, lies in a low sequestered district under the Broxton hills amid shady lanes and cow lanes. It has a post office, church, hotel, two stores, grist mill and blacksmith shop. (See Lyson's Hist. Cheshire). Tilston is noticed in Doomsday as a part of the possessions of the Baron of Malpas. The manor shortly afterwards passed to the Abby of St. Werburgh, and was confirmed to Abbot Robert and his convent in the bull obtained from Pope Clement, under the name of Tiddverton. The following deeds relating to lands in Tilston are recorded in the Abby Chartulary. A grant of lands and a fourth part of the Vill and Mill by John, son of Bricans De'Pouton. A quit claim of the Vill by Andrew Batayle. Other grants by Richard, son of Simon de Tidulstan, by William de Auld de Tidulstan, and an agreement relating to Tilston Heath, between Thomas Abbot of St. Werburgh and Mathew, lord of Alpraham. After the dissolution, the manor of Tilston Fernall formed a part of the endowment of the dean and chapter of Chester, but fell afterwards into the hands of Sir Richard Cotton, and was confirmed to his son, George Cotton, among other fee farmers, by patent 19, Dec. 22, Eliza. The Hall was one of the seats of the Wilbraham family. (Ormerode His. Ches. says.) The Wilbrahams held lands here under Sir Richard Cotton before the accession of Elizabeth, 1558. The manor subsequently became united to the estate most probably by purchase from George Cotton. The residence of the Wilbrahams was taken down, and the outbuildings fitted up as a farm house. Near the site is a farm residence of William Hockenhall. Tilston Lodge, a handsome stuccoed mansion, in a small park, is the residence of Edwin Corbett, Esq., J. P., on the south side a fine sheet of water. The township of Tilston is thirteen miles south of Chester on the London road, and three miles southeast of Tarpoly. It lies in a flat, sandy and unpleasant situation. The services of Robert Viscount,, Cholmondeley of Kellis of the kingdom of Ireland, in a skirmish on Tilston Heath during the great Rebellion, are mentioned in his patent of the English barony of Cholmondeley, dated at Oxford, Sept. 1, 21, car. 1.

The Tilstons were for many generations of Tilston and afterwards of Huxley, there was a numerous male progeny of this family at the time of Glover's visitation in 1580. A younger branch was settled at Tottenhall, and younger branches of that in London and at Shropshire. We have not been able to ascertain whether any of these are extinct. Ralph settled at Newport. Thomas his son, changed his name to Tillotson, ancestor of John, Archbishop of Canterbury. Huxley, seven miles southeast from Chester, passed by sale to the Tilston, and the whole or part of it in marriage with a co-heiress of Tilston to the Bruins of Stapleford. The Tilstons had a seat at Huxley. A chapel in Waverton church was built and appropriated to the Tilstons of Huxley in 1640. Dr. Tilston, who died in 1764, is supposed to have been the last male heir of the Cheshire Tilstons. (See Hanshalls Hist. of Cheshire.)

Thomas Tilson was a prominent diplomatist in the middle of the 18th century. He became a Baronet. (See Thomas Carlyle's His. of Frederick the Great.)

Sir W. Lushington Tilson, who took the name of Lushington Learsh, died about 1885, and the title is I think extinct. He was a clergyman.

In 1890 the township or manor of Tilston was the property of Lord John Tollemache, where his family reside at Pecforton Castle, not far from the famous Tilston Castle, the walls of which remain and can be seen southeast from the Tower on the Wall at Chester. There are about eighty tenements on the estate, the greater number are rented with land for farming.

The township or manor of Tilston, Cheshire, Eng., seems to have existed under another name in saxon times as far back as 449, and to the time it was subdued by William, the Conqueror, a Norman, who was made King, Dec. 25, 1066. Lancashire and Cheshire counties were the last to yield. Chester was the last of the cities to submit, and Hugh Lupas, William's nephew, was made Earl. The manor of Tilston, being given to a Norman Knight, named Eynion, who thus became Sir Eynion de'Tilston. From him came all the branches of the Tilston families. The position of Tilston on the borders of wild Wales proves that Sir Eynion was a capable man and the family must have been a brave clan not to have had their throats cut from the time of Eynion to that of Nicholas de'Tilston in the reign of Edward 1st, when Wales was finally subdued in 1283. County influence of families was in early times very considerable; one branch possessed the manor of Tilston Fearneal in Cheshire. The walls of Tilston Castle still exist where the head of the family resided. The decay of the family dates from the commonwealth, the time of Cromwell, 1650 to 1658, old Chester was again the last to yield. It is said that the round heads hanged the head of the family for his desperate resistence in the cause of the Stuarts. In Charles the 1st reign, who succeeded to the throne in 1649, but was compelled to leave the country until the death of Cromwell in 1658, when he returned to the throne, there was still a Nicholas de'Tilston at Tilston Castle, with diminished resources. Some of the branches of Tilson went to Yorkshire and Lincolnshire; they were prominent in the reign of Charles 1st.

Tilston in the werrell hundred of Broxton, and deanery of Malpas, lies about three miles west of Malpas, and twelve miles south of Chester. A moiety of the manor of Tilston being a parcel of the barony of Malpas, belonged about the year 1600, to the Breretons. In the reign of Charles II., Sir Wm. Drake, the other moiety, purchased by J. Leashe, Esq., has passed by the name of the Earl's estate at Malpas. (See Lyson's His. Cheshire.)

Many of the shires were subdivided into what were called Hundreds. Each Hundred comprised a colony of one hundred families, or to put it more precisely, ten divisions. Each consisting of ten freeholders and their dependents, whose cause was championed by as many selected warriors sworn to defend them with their heart's blood. Between these hundred families a common bond existed; they also adopted a common name; they pledged to support the common defence of the hundred. Villages that were within the area of Saxon, England, are still said to be situated in such and such a Hundred.

By the word manor, so-called from the French manoir, a dwelling, and the Latin verb manere, to dwell, was originally meant an estate containing the dwelling or mansion of its feudal owner. The house itself was designated the manor house, and the owner, the Lord of the manor. The term mansion claims the same etymology.

Right Rev. Henry Tilson, D. D., Yorkshire Bishop, was born at Heptonstall, near Halifax in 1576. He was entered as a student in Baliol College, Oxford, in the beginning of the year 1593; took one degree in arts as a member of that house four years after, and soon afterwards was elected one of Skirlawe's Fellows of University College, and took a degree of master as a member of that house. In October, 1615, he was made vicar of Rochdale, in Lancashire, worth £1500 a year; by the death of R. Kennion; and afterwards being made known to that most generous Count, Thomas, Earl of Strafford, he became his chaplain, and went with him in that capacity to Ireland, when that Earl was made Lord-Lieutenant thereof. Soon afterwards he was by him made Dean of the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, commonly called Christ Church, in Dublin, and Vice-Chancellor of the University, where, continuing in good esteem for his learning and piety, he had the See of Elphin conferred upon him, to which being consecrated on the 23d of September, 1639, he endured soon after great misery by the rebellion that broke out in Ireland in 1641.

Sir James Ware in his history of the Irish Bishops, says: "Bishop Henry Tilson on the 16th of August, 1645, delivered the Castle of Elphin in the hands of the Lord President of Connaught; his son, Capt. Henry Tilson, who was governor of Elphin, having just before joined with Sir Charles Coot in opposition to the King's interest, and about the same time his library and goods were pillaged by Boctius Egan titular Bishop of Elphin, his damages amounting to the sum of four hundred pounds. Bishop Tilson fled for safety into England, and settled at Soothall near Batley in the parish of Dewsbury, Yorkshire, where some of his relatives lived, and where he resided three years, intending to have returned to Elphin, but never did. Having thirteen in his family and being stripped of his income, he was obliged to have recourse to such means for subsistance as his station in the church put in his power, for this purpose he consecrated a room at Soothall, called to this day, the Bishop's parlor, where he privately ordained and did weekly the offices of a clergyman, some of his neighbors being both hearers and benefactors to him, till Sir William Wentworth of Broton out of compassion to his distressed circumstances, employed him to preach at Cumberworth, allowing him a salary sufficient to support him. Thus was this Prelate oblige to stoop to become a country curate." It is said that he walked eleven miles to Emley church on Sundays and preached. Report says: "That on a sacrament day, people hearing that Bishop Tilson would preside, came in great numbers, and twenty-two bottles of wine were used in the services." The Tilsons were at Soothill in 1748. The writer visited at Soothill Hall, July 27, 1890. The gentleman residing there, very kindly explained to me, and showed me the Bishop's parlor. Upon a piece of carving in the room was 1647. It was probably the date of consecrating the room. He died March 31, 1655, aged 80 years, and buried in the southeast corner of Dewsbury church. The following was taken from the Register of the Dewsbury Parish church. Henry Lord Bishop of Elphin buried the 2d day of April 1655. In the chapel is a monument on the wall with the inscription as given below:

The arms on monument are, "Or a bend cotised between two garbs Azure, changed with a mitre of the field," which are so like the Arms of Tillotson, that one would almost imagine that these names, if not their families, were originally the same. Watson's history says: "I have been credibly informed that the late James Tilson, who died at Cadiz said this Bishop's family came originally from Tilston in Cheshire. If so, they were absolutely the same. (Watson's history of Halifax, published 1775.)

There are portraits of Nathaniel Tilson and family (son of Bishop Tilson) with his wife, daughter, son Henry, and younger son, three-quarter length figures, on canvas 50 in. by 60 in., painted by Henry Tilson, in possession of Mr. Thomas Shaen Carter, No. 980, in South Kensington Catalogue. There is also an original portrait of Henry Tilson, a skillful artist in portraiture, the son of Nathaniel Tilson. He was born in Yorkshire in 1619, and was the grandson of Bishop Tilson. He was a pupil of Sir Peter Lely, and was esteemed a good painter of portraits, both in oil and crayons, especially in the latter. He died in 1645, or 1655. (From Yorkshire Weekly Post, May 24, 1890.)

For nephew of Bishop Tilson, (see Walpole's Anecdotes of Paintings. Vol. III., page 103, Edit., 1763).

Watson's His. of Halifax, Eng., Pub. 1775.

Archbishop John Tillotson's pedigree is as follows: Nicholas[1] de Tilston, Lord of Tilston in Cheshire, had John[2] de Tilston, who had Nicholas[3] de Tilston (9 Edward III.) who had John[4] Tilston of Tilston, who married Joanna 3d dau. of Thomas Danyers of Bradley in Cheshire, by whom Robert[5] Tilston of Tilston, who had Roger[6] Tilston of Tilston, Esq., in the time of Henry V., who married Catherine, 2d dau. of Sir John Leigh of Baguley in Cheshire, Knt., by whom Thomas[7] Tilston of Tilston, Esq., who married Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Hugh Heath of Huxley in Cheshire, by whom 1st, Hugh Tilston of Huxley, Esq. (or as one authority calls him John), and 2d, Richard[8] Tilston. This Richard[8] married Maud, dau. of Richard Bostock, by whom he had Thomas (who had issue), and Richard[9] and others. This Richard[9] Tilston was of Newport in Shropshire, (and by an unaccountable mistake, Dr. Birch in his life of the Archbishop, calls him first Roger and then Ralph.) He mar. Elizabeth, 2d dau. of William Leighton, second son of Sir Thomas Leighton of Wattsborough in Shropshire, Knt., by whom Ralph Tilston of Goldaston, Tristram Tilston, Thomas[10] Tilston of Wookliff, in the parish of Carlton in Craven, and William Tilston. This Thomas[10] changed his name from Tilston to Tillotson, as I was informed by the late Rev. Mr. Tillotson of St. Paul's school, who heard his father say that the name was altered as above: the said Mr. Tillotson's father was told so by this Mr. Tillotson's grandfather, who was father to the Archbishop. This Thomas[10] Tilston, alias Thomas Tillotson, had George[11] Tillotson, who married Eleanor, dau. of Elias Nutter of Pendleforest in Lancashire, by whom Robert[12] Tillotson of Sowerby, who was buried at Sowerby Feb. 22, 1682-3, age 91.

Robert[12] Tillotson (was a Puritan clothier); married Mary, dau. of Thomas Dobson of the Stones in Sowerby, by whom he had Robert John (Archbishop of Canterbury), Joshua and Israel. John Tillotson was born in Tuile-lane, Sowerby, Yorkshire, Eng., Oct., 1630. He studied at Clare Hall, Cambridge, 1647, took degree of B. A., 1650, and A. M., 1654; in 1657 became private tutor in the family of Edmund Predeaux, Devonshire. Attorney General, under the protector, but returned to London before Cromwell's death. He became a preacher in 1661. At the Restoration he went over to the established Church. In 1664 he married Elizabeth, dau. of Peter French, canon of Christ Church, Oxford, and niece of Oliver Cromwell. Tillotson employed his controversial weapons with some skill against Atheism and Popery. On the 5th Nov., 1678, he preached a sermon against Popery before the House of Commons, in which he maintained that it was their duty to make provision against the propagation of a religion more mischievious than irreligious itself; but in his sermon on Protestant religion in 1680, before the King, he propounded the proposition that Catholics could enjoy their own faith, but not openly draw men off from the profession of the established religion. He attended Lord Russell on the scaffold in 1683. He enjoyed the friendship of Lady Russell, and through her obtained influence with Princess Anne, who followed his advice in settlement of the Crown on William of Orange. He possessed special confidence of William and Mary, and was made clerk of the Closet to the King, Mar. 27, 1689. Through his advice the King appointed ecclesiastical commission to reconcile dissenters. He was elected as Archbishop of Canterbury, which place he accepted in April, 1691. His attempt to reform certain abuses of the Church made some enemies, and the Jacobites took every advantage and persued him, but could neither provoke nor fright him in his duty. He was taken ill during service in church and died in London, Nov. 24, 1694.

The arms of Tilston or Tillotson are now, or lately were, on the walls of Wookliff Chapel. Viz: Azure a bend cotised between two garbs or crest; bear's head issuing out of a mural Crown.

Motto: Jactor non Mirgor.

These are the Arms of Tilston of Tilston in Cheshire, and were also confirmed by William Flower, Norroy, Aug. 28, 1580. 22 Eliz. to Ralph Tilson (or Tilston) of Huxley in Cheshire.

In Watson's History of Halifax, Eng., is a pedigree of the Tilstons of Huxley, which differ in some particulars from the descents of that family incorporated with the preceding pedigree on authority of Harl. M. S. S., 1535, and other Cheshire Cols. In Watson's, Thomas Tilston, 27 Henry VI., is omitted, and Hugh Tilston is said to have a younger brother, Richard, who is stated to have been ancestor of John Tillotson, archbishop of Canterbury.

Thomas Moulson, Knight and Alderman of London, 6 July, 1636, will proved Dec. 8, 1638: To my Cousin Tilston of Huxley and his wife.

James the 1st died 1625. His son, Charles 1st, succeeded to the throne, and soon in 1625 made the attempt to force from the people a general loan by mere exercise of Royal authority, without consent of Parliament. Throughout England many refused to pay the tax, and by warrant of the council were imprisoned.

At Lincoln, 9 March, 1626.

John Whitinge, Maior of Boston burge, formerly called before his ma'ts commissioners & by them required to ayde his ma'ts in this way of loane, and having refused, was again called before us whos names are underwritten, and demanded if he still contynued in the same mynde, answered he did, and that he would not lend any money in this kinde, and being told by the commissioners that such as refused & contynued in that mynde incured his m'ts highe displeasure; nevertheless he still refused; and being required to become bounde by obligation to his ma'ts in the sume of fifty pounds for his appearance before the Lordes of his ma'ts most ho'ble privite counsell at Whitehall, the XIX day of this instant, also refused to be bounde.

Edward Tilson, Alderman of Boston, havinge as much saide unto him as was saide to the Mayor, Refused to lend the Kinge so small a sum as XXs, or to so enter bond for his appearance. Ten of the princapal ones were imprisoned as below:

Sr. John Wray, Sr. Thomas Grantham, Sr. Edward Aschough, Gate house.

Sr. William Armyn, Sr. Thomas Dornall, William Anderson, Esq., and the Maior of Boston, Alderman Tilson, Fleete.

William Tarald, Esquier, Norwood, Esq, Marshalsey.

Sixty-eight refused, and were imprisoned. The Gate house, the Fleete, and Marshalsey, were well known prisons to which these gentlemen were commited. The refusal became general. The answer of John Diconson, who refused, was this, "he would give nothing in this illegal way, but whatsoever a Parliment might impose, he would willingly pay." The great majority were released, but not allowed to go to their homes for fear of their stirring up fresh disaffection among their neighbors. The release was in July, 1627. They were called nonconformists.

Genealogical Register.

You may alsoe please to take into your consideration that one Benj. Dickoson of Boston, adviseth that the town of Boston is able and ought to contribute to the charge and expense of theyre late Mayor and Edw. Tilson, or anye else that suffer trouble in cause of the loane; and to help towards theyre losses. p. John Hobson collector.

Edward Tilson was Mayor of Boston in 1625-6, reign of Charles 1st.

Thompson's His. of Boston, England.

In 1640 the families of Tilson, Whiting, Leake of Leake, heirs of Wm. Coney and Andrew Baron, held property in Sibley's lane. The property adjoining this immediately North of Sibley's Lane belonged to the Tilson family in 1640. A garden and orchard on North side Sibley's Lane was surrounded by garden and orchard of Edward Tilson, and the Staplers, and Mr. Tilson's warehouse on the west.

The religious and political persecutions in the reign of James 1st, which drove the Puritans from the Kingdom in 1620, and forced them "for conscience sake to find a new home in the bleak and almost unknown shores of New England," continued to operate for a long period. Many obstacles were interposed in the reign of Charles 1st, and by the influence of Archbishop Laud, orders of council were passed compelling those who wished to emigrate to take the oath of supremacy and allegiance. It was the exercise of this arbitrary power which has furnished us with the means of determining at what period our forefathers left England, and in many cases the places, and whence they came, and their ages and occupations; as the certificate of the administration of the oath was recorded in the office, it was found in the augmentation office Westminster Hall in 1842. It contains names of persons permitted to embark at the Port of London after Christmas, 1634. It is quite evident that Edmond Tilson and family came in one of those vessels, where the list of passengers were not given by names, and previous to Sept. 3, 1638, when he was recorded at Plymouth, New England. The following is a list of vessels leaving different ports of England, between Feb., 1634, and May, 1637, for New England, with dates of permit to passengers of each vessel.

THOMAS BIRD,
WALTER HATCH.

The truth of this aforsaid Inventory was attested on oath by Joan Tilson at the Court held at Plymouth, the fift day of March, 1661.

May 8, 1889. The foregoing is a true copy from Plymouth Colony Record of Wills. Vol. II., pages 64 and 65.

Ply. March 5, 1660-1.—Lres of administration was granted unto Joane, the wife of Edmond Tilson, late deceased, to administer upon his estate, and to pay all such debts as are owing to any.

The court has further ordered, that the said Joane Tilson her husband dying without will, and forasmuch as shee have thirty pounds sterling out of said estate as her own proper, to her and her heires forever, and for the remainder of the said estate, that the younger children be made equall to the elder in what they have had, and for the remainder, that is done, that it be equally divided amongst all the children in equal proportions.

Plymouth March 4, 166-2.—Concerning a controversy betwixt Joan Tilson, widdow, and John Barnes, about the price of a cow by him, received in parte pay due for the land at Lakeham, the court has ordered, that John Barnes shall repay or discount the sume of twelve shillings unto said Widdow Tilson, and see the matter is ended.

FIRST GENERATION.

In the absence of any record as to when Edmond Tilson and wife Joane left England, or arrived in New England, we can only form conclusions from the first records at Plymouth, Mass., when he applied to the court, Sept. 3, 1638, for land at Woeberry Plaine, and same year on Oct. 1, the court granted him five acres. (The new county buildings are on Woeberry Plaine.) He was many times on the Jury, evidently a capable person and interested in the affairs of the Colony. He owned land at North River on the northerly bound of "the two mile," which was a part of Scituate, and at Lakenham, (now a part of Carver). His residence was at Plymouth, where he died Oct. 25, 1660. His widow, Mrs. Joane Tilson, married Giles Rickard, Sr., May 20, 1662. She died before 1669, from the fact that Giles Rickard, Sr., married 3d, Hannah, widow of John Churchill, in 1669. There is nothing to establish the birth of any of the following children. By comparing various records, I have been able to give some approximate dates, which may aid some. Without doubt three of the children were born in England.

Mary Tilson, b. prob. betw. 1625-30; m. James Cole, Jr.
Elizabeth Tilson, b. prob. betw. 1630-34; m. Benj. Denham.
Ephraim Tilson, b. prob. betw. 1635-37; m. Elizabeth Hoskins.
Joan Tilson, b. prob. 1638.
John Tilson, b. prob. 1640; d.; will proved Oct. 29, 1673.

Mary Tilson[2], (Edmond[1]) dau. of Edmond and Joane Tilson, b.——; m. Dec. 23, 1652, James Cole, Jr., of Plymouth, N. E. (Cole's His. says: They were married at Scituate; moved to York, Me.; returned to Plymouth; was surveyor of highways in 1656. In 1657 his taxes were remitted.) He was b. 1625; died, 1709.*

Their Children:

7 Mary Cole, b. Dec. 3, 1653; m. Capt. John Lothrop of Barnstable, June 3, 1671-2. He was b. Feb. 9, 1644; d. 1727.

*Next to the Baptist Church on Leyden street, Plymouth, Mass., where the house formerly owned by Ephraim T. Paty now stands, is the site of the tavern of James Cole, Sr. He kept tavern from 1638 to 1660. It is probable that James Cole, Jr., continued to keep the house, as Judge Samuel Sewell in his diary, 1697, says: "I lodge at Cole's. Also March 8, 1698, while attending court at Plymouth."

8 Joan Cole, b.——; m. Thomas Howland of Plymouth, 1699.
THEIR CHILDREN WERE:
9 Consider Howland, b. Sept. 28, 1700.
10 Joanna Howland, b. Oct. 8, 1702; d.——.
11 Experience Howland, b. March 11, 1705.
12 Thomas Howland, b. Nov. 23, 1707.
13 Elizabeth Howland, b. May 23, 1711.
14 Hannah Howland, b. Dec. 19, 1712.
15 Joanna Howland, b. Aug. 5, 1716.
16 Joseph Howland, b. Aug. 24, 1718.
17 Martha Cole, b. 1669; m. Nathaniel Howland of Plymouth, March 3, 1696-7.
THEIR CHILDREN:
18 Joseph Howland, b. May 8, 1699.
19 Mary Howland, b. Feb. 15, 1702.
20 Nathaniel Howland, b. June 9, 1705.
21 Joseph Howland, b. Sept. 28, 1708.
22 Ephraim Cole, b. 1617; d. May 15, 1731.
Ply., May, 1665.

James Cole, for breaking the peace in striking Robert Ransom, is fined 00, 03, 04; and whereas hee spake unadvisely in saying: "Kill the rogue," meaning the said Robert Ransom, hee taking notice of his great oversight in so speaking, and it being spoken when he was in great passion, seeing his brother much abused by said Ransom, and that he, the said Cole, hath been of a peaceable disposition, the court saw cause with admonition to remite the fault.

ELIZABETH TILSON[2], (Edmond[1]) dau. of Edmond and Joam Tilson; m. Oct. 25, 1660, Benjamin Denham of Eastham, N. E., b. 1640.
THEIR CHILDREN:
23 Edmond Denham, b. July 25, 1661.
24 John Denham, b. Aug. 22, 1663; d. Sept. 6, 1663.
25 Elizabeth Denham, b. Nov. 20, 1664; d. Dec. 31, 1667.
26 Hannah Denham, b. June 4, 1666; d. Dec. 25, 1667.
27 Benjamin Denham, b. Oct. 28, 1667.

EPHRAIM TILSON[2], (Edmond[1]) son of Edmond and Joane Tilson; m. July 9, 1666, *Elizabeth Hoskins, dau. of William Hoskins of Plymouth, N. E. She was b. about 1646.
THEIR CHILDREN:
28 Edmund Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1667; m. Elizabeth Waterman, Hannah Orcutt, Hannah Dunbar, Deborah Caswell.
29 Ephraim Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1670; m. Mercy Rickard.

30 John Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1672; m. Lydia Rickard.
31 Lydia Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1675; m. John Polland.
32 Mercy Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1677; m. Josiah Washburn.
33 Anne Tilson, b. in Plymouth, N. E., about 1680; m. Joseph Sampson.

Aged Ephraim Tilson, deceased Oct., 1716.

Plympton Records.

There is no record of the births of the above children. The will of John Tilson, 1673, gives his property to his brother Ephraim's oldest son, Edmond. So we may conclude that Ephraim and John were born previous to that date, and Edmund may have been born in 1667.

Plymouth, May, 1665. Ephraim Tilson, for breaking the King's peace in striking Robert Ransom, is fined 00, 03, 04.

1670. Ephraim Tilson made freeman.

1674. Ephraim Tilson, surveyor of highways of Plymouth.

1676. Ephraim Tilson, surveyor of highways of Plymouth.

1680. Ephraim Tilson, surveyor of highways of Plymouth.

The Plymouth Colony Records gives sufficient evidence that we may consider the following nearly correct:

Children of William and Ann (Hinde) Hoskins, at Plymouth, N. E.

Sarah, b. Sept. 16, 1636 (from Ply. Col. Rec.) bound to a family.

Mary, b. about 1640; m. Edward Cobb, Nov. 28, 1660.

Rebecca, b. about 1643; m. Richard Briggs of Taunton, Aug. 15, 1662.

*Elizabeth, b. about 1646; m. Ephraim Tilson, July 7, 1666.

William, b. Nov. 30, 1649 (Ply. Col. Rec.); m. Sarah Caswell of Taunton, July 3, 1677.

Samuel, b. Aug. 8, 1654 (Ply. Col. Rec.)

Ply. Col. Rec., page 98, March 2, 1641. Ann Hinde, "wife of William Hoskins." She was then about 25 years old.

Ply. Col. Rec., March 2, 1679-80. Court orders four pounds to be paid to William Hoskins by the treasurer, being poor, loosing all he had in the late war and being grown old and unable to labor.

Ply. Col. Rec. Letrs granted Oct. 27, 1675, by court at Plymouth, to Mary, widow of Edward Cobb of Taunton, to settle his estate.

To all whom these presents shall come, John Tilson of Plymouth, in New England, in America, husbandman, sendeth greet: Know yea that I, the aforesaid John Tilson, for and in consideration of a sufficient sum of money to mee already payed by Elisha Besbey of Marshfield, in the Collinie of New Plym., aforesaid husbandman, wherewith I doe acknowledge myself sufficiently satisfied, contented and payed and thereof and every part and parcell thereof do exonerate, acquite and discharge the said Elisha Besbey himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever by these presents have freely and absolutely bargained and sold, expended and confirmed and doe by these presents bargain, sell, enfe of and confirm from me the said John Tilson and my heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever, a certain tract and parcell of upland and meddow land lying and being in Scituate, in the Collinie of New Plymouth aforesaid, upon the easterly syde of the river commonly called and known by the name of the North River; the upland contains by estimation forty acres, be it more or lesse, and is bounded towards the north and south to the land of Thomas Bird, towards the east to the common land, towards the west to the meddow aforesaid, which parcell of meddow contains by estimation three acres and a quarter, be it more or less, and is bounded towards the north to the meddow land of Thomas Bird and the North River, towards the south to the land of Thomas Bird, towards the east to the upland aforesaid, towards the west pointing upon the North River. To have and to hold the said upland and meddow land from mee the said John Tilson and my heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever, to him the said Elisha Besbey and his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever, with all the privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging or any way appertaining to any part or parcell thereof, and all my right, title or interest in the premises or any part or parcell thereof. *To be holden according to the manor of East Greenwich in the County of Kent, in free and common soccage and not in capite nor by Knight's service nor by the rents and services thereof and thereby doe and of right accustomed; binding myself, my heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to make good the sale title of the above said upland and meddow lands against all people whatsoever from, by or under me the said John Tilson or by my right or title claiming any right, title or interest in the premises or any part or parcel thereof; and I, the said John Tilson, doe covenant, promise and grant by these presents that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Elisha Besbey either by himself or his attorneys to record or enrole these presents or to cause them to be recorded and enroweled in the Court of New Plymouth before the court for the time being or any other magistrate in that case provided according to the usual manor of recording and enrowling evidences. In witness whereof I have hereunto

*The law of entail prevailed in England by which real estate descended to the oldest son, to the exclusion from the inheritance of the younger children. But in the county of Kent there prevailed a local law called the custom of Greenwich, by virtue of which lands descended to and were divided among all the children. These Scituate men who came from that county in England knew of this law and its just and beneficial effect. The following law was enacted by the court: "Land after Greenwich hold. The inheritance to descend according to the commendable custom of England, and hold of East Greenwich."

His of Scituate, by Daniel E. Damon.

238 Eliza Ann Tilson, b. Aug. 3, 1828, in Boston, Mass.
239 David Holmes Tilson, b. Jan. 26, 1830, in Boston, Mass.

In 1816 David Tilson came to Boston to work at the slaters' trade, entering the service of Robert Wilson and Galbraith. In 1817 he was sent in charge of the firm's work to Halifax, N. S., where the State House or Province Building was roofed by him and his men, besides other large structures. In 1818 he began business on his own account. In the winter of that year he went to Sidney, Me., and taught school, and Mrs. Tilson was one of his pupils. He was then 21 years of age. His educational advantages up to that time must have been very meagre. But he was possessed of a strong, practical mind; was distinguished by his integrity, and became a valued friend and worker in the various organizations of which he was a member. In 1826 he was a prominent member of the Boston Fire Department; a member of the Mechanic's Fire Insurance Co. twenty-five years; secretary of Cambridge Wharf Co. twenty-five years. In 1829 he joined the Mechanic's Charitable Association and the Handal and Hayden Society in 1834. He was proprietor of the slating business since 1818. His son David became partner. After his death the firm was Tilson & Webber. He was known from Maine to California as a business man, precise in all his work. The qualities of manhood which he possessed gave him a high place in the trusts and hearts of those associated with him. He died Dec. 5, 1873, at his home, Crescent Place, Boston. The funeral services were at the Bulfinch Street Church by Rev. Mr. Winckley.

Henry Martin Rowe, (Holmes[6], Benjamin[5], John[4], Edmund[3], Ephraim[2], Edmond[1]) third son of Orrin Fuller Rowe and Elizabeth P. (Tilson) Rowe was born Aug. 14, 1839, at Tilson's corner, West Sidney, Me. His parents moved to Augustus, Me., in 1849; he attended the grammar and High school of that city. In 1856 he began to learn the printer's trade of Stevens and James G. Blaine on the Kennebec Journal, but gave up the business after serving one year, and began work for his father in the Hotel Cushnoc in Augusta. In 1858 was apprenticed to L. M. Leland to learn the art of gun making. He left Augusta in 1861, and went to Stonington, Conn., and worked in the gun factory for Huff Bros. of New York one year, then went to Providence, R. I., working in the Providence Tool Co. on government guns. He came to Boston in 1864, working in different shops on sewing and button hole machines. Was the first person to make a button hole by machine invented by Mr. Vogal, a Swede. In 1868 engaged with his brother, B. S. Rowe in the retail shoe trade at 10 Essex street, and was burned out in 1872; they then located at 19 Kneeland street, (now 25). In 1875 he bought his brother's interest, and has continued in the business to the present time, 1911. He was made a mason in Bethelam Lodge, No. 35 of Augusta, Me., in 1867; received Chapter Degrees July 1879, in Mt. Vernon R. A. Chapter, Roxbury, Mass.; charter member of Dorchester, R. A. C., 1893; received degrees of K. T., Jan. 1882, in Boston Commandery; became member in Joseph Webb Lodge of A. F. & A. M., 1877; served the lodge as W. M. in 1887 and 1888.

391 William Tilson, b. Dec. 26, 1803, in Halifax, Mass.
392 Lydia Tilson, b. June 12, 1808, in Halifax, Mass.

John Tilson was a very kind hearted, peaceable, industrious man, a great worker indeed; a man of excellent common sense. Naturally of a cultivated mind, became more educated than many of his neighbors. With such surroundings and his old fashioned notions, but few would have done more for their children. He was one of the wealthiest men of Halifax in 1815. He built a large house in the west part of the town. His son, Capt. William, occupied it until his death. From this house his son John and wife migrated in 1822 to their western home, near Quincy, Ill. The grandson, William Tilson, now occupies the old home (1896).

John Tilson, Jr., enlisted 1775, to stay 6 weeks, till Jan., 1776, at Roxbury or Boston. Received 18 shillings from town of Halifax. He enlisted for 3 mos. at Bristol, 1776; received 18 shillings. A list of soldiers who went to Bristol or Warren upon the alarm, Dec., 1776, gives John Tilson, Jr., 6 shillings.

Mass. Archives—John Tilson, private, Capt. Judah Wood's Co., Col. Thomas Lothrop's Regt., for service in R. I., Dec. 9, 1776; time of service 15 days, marching from Halifax, Mass., to Bristol, R. I. Vol. 3, page 226.

JOHN TILSON[7] (John[6], John[5], John[4], Edmund[3], Ephraim[2], Edmond[1]), son of John and Desire (Shaw) Tilson; b. March 13, 1796; m. Oct. 6, 1822, Christaina Holmes of Kingston, Mass.; b. Oct. 11, 1798; dau. of Col. Charles and Rebecca (Briggs) Holmes. She d. in N. Y. City, May 29, 1872. Many years of her life were spent in Illinois. She early gave most active, generous and judicious aid to many of the charities which are now so great a power in the west.

THEIR CHILDREN:

393 Charles Holmes Tilson, b. Sept. 15, 1823, in Hillsborough, Ill.
394 John Tilson, b. Oct. 12, 1825, in Hillsborough, Ill.
395 Robert H. Tilson, b. Oct. 22, 1830, in Hillsborough, Ill.; unm.; resides in N. Y. City.
396 Christaina H. Tilson, b. Feb. 25, 1838, in Brookline, Mass.; unm.; resides in N. Y. City.

John Tilson's boyhood and early manhood were spent with his parents on a farm in Halifax, Mass., attending the district school winters and working on the farm summers. He attended the Bridgewater Academy six months, and taught school at (Crookertown), Pembroke, Mass., and other places. In 1818, Dr. N. B. Shurtleff of Boston, having purchased a farm in Chelsea (new Revere), just out of the city, he spent the summer on the farm, and in the winter was writing in the doctor's office, Boston, attending a course of lectures on chemistry and geology, improving also other advantages which the city offered for education. In the spring of 1819 he went to Illinois as agent for the doctor, who had purchased largely in soldiers' land warrants, which required surveying, recording, etc. In 1821 he with others petitioned for a new county, Montgomery, Ill. He became post master, which gave him the franking privilege, being of importance in his business. In those days letters from there to N. Y. or Boston were 25 cents postage. In 1822 he returned east, traveling the entire distance by horse and saddle. On the 6th of October he married Miss Christaina Holmes of Kingston, Mass., and returned to Illinois by horse and carriage, arriving there the 27th November. Mr. Tilson was possessed of great hopefulness and energy. He was one of the most amiable of men in his intercourse with the world, both socially and in business, yet determined and persevering in whatever he undertook to do. He died at Peoria, Ill., May 11, 1853. He was known and esteemed throughout the state. His personal characteristics were well portrayed in an address by the Rev. Dr. Post., who describes him as "Tilson, the genial and generous, whose presence ever seemed to bring a larger sunlight with it, and whose public spirit and liberality wrought for permanent benefit in the early history and institutions of the state." There is scarce an influence of public good during the first thirty years of our state history (Illinois) that was not aided by his wise counsel, and his open and sustaining hand. Yet more richly was his sunny nature seen in the home where his chief affections rested and which realized blessed protection of a husband and father so indulgent and devoted.

In 1819 going to Illinois was more of an event than a trip now to the most remote part of the world. No railroads and steamboats to annihilate time and distance, and the good people of Halifax were furnished with a new topic of conversation when it was known that John Tilson was going to Illinois. Some approving, others thought it a wild undertaking, and that he would find it so before he was half through his journey. In the early days of being in Illinois, he with two others kept "bachelors' hall." A small commencement at first, but a nucleus, for all the sick, homesick, newly arrived and errant bachelors generally. All sought and took shelter at "Bachelors' Hall." Among the arrivals that winter were Milton Shurtleff from Carver and William Porter of Middleboro, Mass. The carriage which John Tilson and wife journeyed to Illinois in was built at Bedford, Mass., by his direction, similar to a two-seated buggy. At that time buggies were not known. They had a trunk under the seat, a bonnet trunk in front, and portmanteau containing the gentleman's clothes, a trunk behind and a little bamboo basket for night clothes, bundles, etc., and lunch basket. Their rate of travel was to be about thirty-four miles per day. Was eight days to New York. The journey from there was by Philadelphia, Pa., Wheeling, Va., Cincinnati, O., Louisville, Ky., Cairo, Ill., to Greenville, Ill.

General John Tilson was educated at Illinois College and Kentucky Law School. Soon after the Civil War began he entered the service as captain in the 10th Ill. Regt., and soon promoted to Lt. Col. and Col. of the regiment, and soon placed in command of a brigade, which position he held during the war. He was with Gen. Sherman in his march from Atlanta to the sea, which began Nov., 1864, with 60,000 tried and true men, moving through Georgia in three separate columns, which was made in 34 days, marching 255 miles. Gen. Tilson's military career was long and eventful, serving from April 29, 1861, to Jan. 29, 1866. The following military orders and reports are very interesting. Gen. Tilson is mentioned on every page and gives a better sketch than anything that might be said. After the war he was appointed collector of internal revenue for the district of Quincy, Ill. He was editor of the Quincy Whig; was a prominent Republican, a ready speaker and often called upon for addresses and poems.

Feb. 28-April 8, 1862. Operations at New Madrid, Mo., and Island No. 10, etc., and descent upon Union City, Tenn. Report of Col. James D. Morgan, 10th Ills. Infantry, commanding brigade, of operation, March 12th and 13th, camp near New Madrid, Mo., March 15, 1862.

In compliance with the order of Gen. Stanley of this date, I herewith make report of the part taken by my brigade in the action at the trenches before New Madrid on the night of the 12th and during the 13th inst. At 5:30 P. M., March 12th, I received orders from Gen. Paine, commanding 4th Div. to report to Gen. Pope's headquarters with my brigade at sundown and there await further orders. Reporting at the hour indicated, I received orders from Gen. Pope to march my brigade, consisting of 10th Ills., under Lieut. Col. John Tilson, and six companies of the 16th Ills. Volunteers, commanded by Col. R. F. Smith (and to whom I am much indebted for prompt and efficient aid), under the direction of Col. Bissell, chief of engineers, and Maj. Lothrop, chief of artillery, to such point as they might designate, near New Madrid, and assist in erecting such work as they thought to construct. We arrived near the ground at 9 P. M., when the 10th Ills., by order of Col. Bissell was thrown forward as skirmishers to secure the line of proposed operations in securing which we reached the outer line of the enemy's pickets, who fired and withdrew. Moving cautiously forward beyond their abandoned picket post, two companies, A and B of the 10th Ills., were thrown yet farther forward as front and flanking skirmishers and picket guard, with strict orders to return no fire if fired upon, which order and a similar one to the whole command, was implicitly obeyed, although we were repeatedly fired upon during the night by the enemy's pickets who occupied a line not more than 400 yards from our own line of operations. Six companies of the 16th Ills. and the remaining 8 companies of the 10th Ills. were detached as working parties under the direction of Col. Bissell, serving the entire night, officers and men working with a will. By daylight four siege guns had been placed in position and trenches and rifle-pits constructed sufficient to protect the whole command. Soon after daylight our pickets were called in and our first gun fired, which was immediately returned, and thence during the whole day the firing from the rebel fortifications and gun boats was kept up with spirit and determination. Their guns were well served, aim and range accurate. At sun down the firing ceased, when the men, although wearied with labor and loss of rest, cheerfully and with spirit worked to extend and strengthen the line of defences. Company E of the 10th Ills. and part of two companies of the 16th Ills. were advanced as pickets, with instructions to watch and report the movements of the enemy in front. They reported continued movement and stir of the enemy during the entire night, both in the front and on the gun boats and steamers, but whether they were being reinforced, were strengthening their position or purposed an evacuation of the place could not be ascertained. A violent rain set in at 11 o'clock, continuing almost without intermission the balance of the night. About 4 A. M. I was relieved by Gen. Stanley with orders to return to camp. In conclusion I will only add that great credit is due to officers and men for the promptness and coolness with which the works were constructed and defended. I have to mourn the loss of a valuable and efficient officier, Capt. Lindsey H. Carr, Company H, 10th Ills., who was killed while on the picket line early on the night of the 12th. Private Blockson of Company G, 10th Ills., was slightly wounded.

I am, with much respect, etc.,

Report of Lieut. Col. John Tilson, 10th Ills. Infantry of Skirmish at Farmington, Miss., May 3d. Headquarters 10th Ills. Volunteers.

Camp near Farmington, Miss., May 4th, 1862.

Sir: In compliance with your order of this date I submit a report of such part taken by the 10th Ills. Volunteers as did not fall under your immediate observation in the movement of yesterday. Moving from camp at 10.30 a. m. on the 3d inst., in light marching order some 4½ miles to the edge of the swamp lining the creek near Farmington we were halted, and first two and soon after two more companies thrown forward and deployed as skirmishers across and on either side of the road leading to Farmington. Receiving soon after an order to move up the whole regiment, I pushed forward and overtook my advance companies (A. F. D. & I.) briskly engaged steadily driving the enemy before them under a close and rapid fire. Halting the left wing and leaving it under charge of Maj. Rowland, the advance companies pushed forward soon clearing the woods of the enemy, and on emerging from the swamp were reformed and placed in position to guard the road through which we had passed, Companies A and F on the right, D across, and I on the left of the road. The left wing with the exception of Company C, which was temporarily detailed to rebuild a bridge across the creek, a duty which under the immediate direction of Genl. Paine, they speedily and effectually accomplished, and the remainder of the brigade coming up the subsequent movements, formation of line of battle, support of artillery, advance and occupation of the town, were under your direction and notice until our return at dark to the swamp. I then was directed to leave two companies in outpost on the west and hold the other eight on the east side of the swamp at the point where we first entered it. Being relieved at 4 p. m. today, the whole command rejoined the brigade at the present camp. The conduct of officers and men was unexceptionally cool, spirited and obedient. The formation under a stinging fire was rapid yet orderly and accurate. The steadiness shown under and exposed to fire without the privilege of returning the same was worthy of all praise. The dashing drive along the heavily obstructed roads and the muddy and tangled woods on either side, killing several of the enemy and offering him no time for successful resistance, was especially commendable. The casualties were:*

The Genl. commanding directs me to say to you that the R. R. bridge at this place will have to be rebuilt. Your command will probably have it to do. You will at once make the necessary details and arrangements to have the work commenced with all possible dispatch. Select an officer from your command capable to superintend the work, send him by first train to department headquarters to make the proper report of the magnitude of the undertaking, getting the necessary tools, etc.

Report of Brig. Genl. James D. Morgan, 1st Div. Operations from

Apl. 22nd to June 6th, 1862. Apl. 25th. This morning the 10th & 16th Illinois Volunteers, Yates sharp shooters and Houghtaling's Battery were ordered forward about 1½ miles to a commanding position as an advance post. The balance of the division left camp about half past 10 A. M., and took the road to Farmington, 2nd Brigade in advance, and in following order. Yates sharp shooters as an advance guard. Tenth Ills., Lieut. Col. Tilson, commanding—enemy soon discovered in strong force, brisk fire commenced along the whole line of skimishers—soon succeeded in driving the enemy across seven mile creek where we found the bridge destroyed and road obstructed. Company C, 10th Ills. Vol., was ordered forward to reconstruct the bridge and clear the road. While this was being done the remaining five companies of the 10th and 16th Ills. were ordered forward and took up a strong position on the hill at the outlet of the swamp. In two hours the bridge was completed, road cleared for passage of artillery, and the command moved forward. The enemy were soon discovered in the front, second brigade formed in the following order of battle. Three companies, the Yates sharp shooters in advance deployed as skirmishers, 16th Ills. on the right, Houghtaling's battery in the center, and the 10th Ills. on the left, our skirmishers soon drove in those of the enemy and Houghtaling's battery opened a close and rapid fire upon one of the enemy's which was promptly and spiritedly replied to. This continued for nearly an hour. Houghtaling advancing steadily and taking up new positions. The battery of the enemy having been silenced, the infantry were then ordered to charge which was done in splendid order, driving the enemy some two miles, the road being covered with cast off clothing, canteens, blankets, haversacks, arms and accoutrement when a halt was ordered. Orders were received from Genl. Pope for the whole division to recross the creek, leaving a sufficient force in the swamp to protect the bridge and road. The 10th and 22nd Ills. Vols. were detailed for that duty, balance of the division returned to a new camp 1½ miles east of the creek. Thus ended the skirmish at Farmington. It was a perfect success, and every officer and man performed his duty promptly and with spirit. Loss of the enemy, some 49 odd killed and buried in the swamp, and over 100 wounded, some 15 prisoners were taken, one captain. 28th. Forward movement of whole division 1½ miles toward Corinth. In the afternoon Genl. Stanley's command was attacked by the rebels pressing his lines somewhat strongly. The 10th and 16th Ills. were ordered to change front and support the line attacked if necessary. The enemy were soon driven back without their assistance when orders were issued for them to return to the trenches. 30th. Evacuation of Corinth. At 4 o'clock A. M. the Yates sharp shooters, 10th & 16th Ills., were ordered to move to the left and toward the fort mentioned yesterday. Proceeding cautiously forward it was soon discovered that the rifle pits of the enemy's pickets were abandoned as was the fort near by. The flag of the 10th Ills. was soon waiving over it. By order of Genl. Pope the 10th Ills. marched by the R. R.'d to Corinth and arrived at the intrenchment at 6.40 A. M., and planted their flag there. Orders were soon received to move forward in pursuit of the enemy. The right of the division arrived near the Tuscumbia about 8 o'clock P. M., where it was found that the bridge across the river had been destroyed, and the enemy in force upon the opposite bank. Houghtaling's battery was placed in position and supported by the 10th Ills. The Yates sharp shooters were deployed as skirmishers in front of our lines, the balance of the division remaining about a mile in the rear. The whole command lay upon their arms during the night. 31st. At daylight the Yates sharp shooters were ordered forward to drive in the pickets of the enemy and get possession of the crossing at the bridge. Soon arriving within their line of fire they met with a determined resistance, and soon lost one killed and five wounded. The 10th and 16th Ills., and 10th Michigan, were ordered forward. The 10th Ills. crossed Clear Creek, and moving forward toward the Tuscumbia on the left of the bridge opened a brisk fire upon the pickets on the other bank driving them away and getting possession of the crossing. During the firing of the 10th a battery of the enemy opened a brisk fire with grape and canister. The firing ceased suddenly and we subsequently learned that the whole force of the enemy had retreated to Danville, and thence to Rienzi. The 10th had but one wounded, Sergeant Cowden Company E, severely in the shoulder. Report includes some 43 days. Few commands have worked harder or accomplished more under like difficulties—miles of road have been built across impassible swamps and bridges built. Miles of earth work thrown up. Great part of the time officers and men were without tents or camp equipage. Steady and determined approaches have compelled the enemy to abandon a position strong by nature, and made doubly so by months of hard labor, and although we have no bloody victories to record, at no time has any disposition to avoid one if offered. Permit me to add that the officers and men of the command have performed their duty to my entire satisfaction.

Col. I have received orders requiring the occupation of this position, and am making disposition accordingly. I have the 10th and 60th Ills., 10th Michigan, and a detachment of the 3rd Ohio Infantry, making some 1,100 men, also a section of Edgarton's (Phip) battery. I need a company of cavalry and am advised by Genl. Mitchell to ask the detachment of one company of the 3rd Indiana (I think was the regiment), also the establishment of a courier line from this point intersecting the Chattanooga and Bridgeport line. In sending back to Bridgeport today for supplies I have also sent the mules and part of harness secured from destruction of train. I hardly need the 3rd Ohio if they are wanted at Battle Creek or Bridgeport, and have so notified the post commandant at Bridgeport. Three good regiments such as I have are, I think all sufficient. Genl. Mitchell and Col. McCook have gone toward McMinnville, and the 5th Kentucky cavalry have since passed following them.

Colonel. The road over the mountain at this point has been almost impassible, but is rapidly being improved. Several long trains are slowly working over. Another road across the ridge some 6 miles north of this, near Dunlap. Genl. Rosecran's train moved up that way this morning. I would not forbid its going, but added two companies to its escort as far as the foot of the mountain on this side. Unless permitted by you I shall forbid all future passages that way, knowing nothing of its safety. If the route is secure it would expedite much. Please instruct me in this. No sign of rebels since yesterday, save an occasional skulking prisoner being brought in.

I have my command intrenched in position to protect the junction of roads, and also aid trains up the mountain. On my arrival I detailed an officer whose especial duty should be clearing the road of obstructions and expediting the trains, in this he has been well assisted by the 21st Kentucky Infantry. The road up the mountain is better than before the raid, and no detentions occur. I keep a record of all trains passing (size, guard, etc.) have secured all the undestroyed ammunition, am gathering up harness which is scattered over the country, have caught and sent about 500 mules to Bridgeport, and am daily securing more. Occassionally stray prisoners, but no signs of the enemy near since Genl. Mitchell left. Have an aggregate force (including one section of artillery) of 2062.

Sir. I have the honor to report that the road up the mountain is in good order, and being fast improved. I have relays of fatigue men at each bend to lift wagons. Am using all my tools in repairing road bed. I allow no trains to enter after 5 P. M., as they cannot get through after that time before dark, and have no proper camping place on the summit; teams are also exhausted at that hour by their day's travel. The quartermaster and wagoners almost without exception discharge their duties admirably, and the train guards are as generally remiss and neglectful. Train guard officers are heedless and their men follow suit, straggle and depredate. To a train of Turchin's brigade I could see but two guards with the wagons, the others probably asleep inside. Steedman's train of yesterday was perfectly guarded and moved.

Genl. I learn unofficially that the enemy are obstructing the passage of return trains to Bridgeport at the foot of the mountain near Chattanooga. I believe if a road could be found passing up the mountain for Chattanooga tapping this road within a few miles of this point that I can pass all trains down the mountain that reach here, and am sure of being able to promise that the road shall be free, for down trains after 2 P. M. each day. I know nothing of the road beyond where my personal observation has gone, and only make this statement for information as to what may be done on the mountain side here provided that necessity and opportunity occurs for its use by return wagons. What the facilities are for getting here, of course I do not know, but I am quite confident that unless bad weather intervenes, with the present amount of travel and improving condition of road and energetic action I can work up to the mountain top each day's accumulation of trains from Bridgeport by 2 P. M. Returning wagons must, however, come into this road this side of the gulch 5 miles from here, as the gulch cannot at present be passed both ways. I make these statements distrustful of the propriety of turning return trains into the road, but quite confident as to what can be done as now situated on the mountain side itself. The report may be unfounded, but I though it wise to communicate with you on hearing of the trouble.

Brig. Genl. J. A. Garfield, Chief of Staff.

Genl. Your order for the 21st Kentucky to move to summit of mountain is complied with. The road is good from the brow on this side about five miles to the gulch; thence for eight or nine miles to the descent on Chattanooga side is good needing some light work on each stretch. The gulch is the worst point, and is very rough. I have already ordered the 21st Kentucky there, and under your order of last evening, directed Col. Price to send part of his force still farther toward Chattanooga to act with two companies which he has posted at the foot of the mountain. I hope this covers your wish. If not please inform Col. Price or myself. The road up the hill I am improving by widening and rebuilding road-bed. I have sent for tools to Bridgeport as ordered, but may not get them before tomorrow night if then.

Very Resp'y Your Ob't Servant, JOHN TILSON,
Col. 10th Ills. Inf. Commanding Forces.

Anderson's Cross-Roads, Tenn., Oct. 13, 1863, 6 A. M.
Lieut. Col. C. Goddard, Asst. Adjt. Genl. Dept. of the Cumberland.

Col. Your communication of 6 P. M. yesterday, directing arrest, etc., of depredators received. Genl. Morgan has ordered Col. Smith of 16th Ills., to assume command of forces here. Presuming that this movement supersedes the authority I received from department headquarters, I shall pass to Col. Smith all communications and information in my hands unless otherwise ordered. Tools from Stevenson sent for in obedience to your orders of 10th. I expect today, 21st, Kentucky reports. Four companies on side of mountain next Chattanooga, and remainder one mile beyond gulch seven miles from here. Courier line is established to connect with Col. Palmer twelve miles north of this at Roberson's Valley, is well picketed. Have alteration of rifle-pit and brush-fence across my entire fort, reaching from the river to the woods near the eastern mountain. River is not passable from my left front picket for two miles, giving perfect defence against cavalry. But few wagons to pass up this morning. Constant rain last night, still falling, makes road quite slippery.

Very Resp'y Your Ob't Servant,
JOHN TILSON Col., 10th Ills. Inf.

Indorsement.

The 16th Ills. had gone to Anderson's Cross Roads on the first order sent Genl. Morgan to move there with his command. Col. Smith ranks Tilson, which accounts for Morgan's order. C. G.

Lieut. Col. C. Goddard, Asst. A. Genl.

Col. I have understood that the propriety of withdrawing the courier-line by the Anderson Road, and of sending dispatches to Col. Tilson by the Poe Road, has been considered at headquarters. By reference to the table of distances below it will be seen that if this arrangement were adopted, all dispatches to Col. Tilson would go sixteen miles out of the way (or nearly double distance), while all dispatches for me would go five miles out of the way. As I have a line from here to Genl. Spears, the courier-line across from Poe's Tavern to this valley is simply unnecessary. Can I withdraw it?

W. J. PALMER, Col. Comdg.

Hdqrs. Anderson's Cavalry. Robersons, Oct. 15, 1863.

Col. John Tilson, Comdg. Brigade.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 13th. I understand from it that you have five regiments of infantry stretched across the valley from the east mountain (Walden's) to the Tequatchie River. There is as your are aware a main road extending the whole length of the valley on the west side of the Tequatchie River. I have all the roads and trails leading from this main road over the Cumberland mountains picketed from Dunlap to the Lamb trail nine miles above it in the valley. But there are several trails and roads over the Cumberland ridge south of Dunlap that I cannot picket. It would seem that some force should be at Therman, and that the mountain trails between Therman and Dunlap should be picketed on the main valley road connecting them be frequently patrolled. The propriety of withdrawing the courier-line across the mountain at Anderson's and making the connection with your camp by the Poe road has been discussed, I understand at headquarters. This should by no means be done as it is five miles nearer from my camp to Chattanooga by way of Andersons than by Poe's Tavern, and it will be greatly out of the way to send from Chattanooga to you by way of Poe's Tavern. Would it not be wise for you to represent this fact to headquarters? Genl. Spears sent me word yesterday from his camp on Sale Creek that Col. Byrd, the advance of Burnside's army has his brigade at Post Oak Springs on this side of the river in Roane County, and that his pickets extend down the river as far as Cotton Port (where Wheeler's cavalry recently crossed), scouts just returned from the south side of the river report the enemy's strength between Harris and the Hiwassee River at 1,000 to 1,500. The courier line from Chattanooga to Washington was expected to be extended through to Burnside's command yesterday. Can you tell me whether the Little Tequatchie River is past fording above Jasper on the road from Dunlap down the valley? I have a train by that route for subsistence. Do you have any communication with Jasper or Battle-Creek? We have an excellent bridge across the Big Tequatchie River near here at Therman. I shall be pleased to hear from you what is going on below or at Chattanooga.

Yours, etc., WM. J. PALMER, Col. Commanding.

Hd'qrs. 21st. Kentucky Vol. On Walden's Ridge, 6 miles from Anderson's, Oct. 16, 1863. Maj. Genl. W. S. Rosecrans: My dear sir: I arrived here last evening, ambulance and all, and shall be off again at 7 this morning. The road from here to Chattanooga is pretty good with the exception of a few places requiring repairs. The 21st Kentucky has not yet received a sufficient supply of tools, although they were promised last Monday. Col. Tilson or Smith was to furnish them. I will see about it when I reach Anderson's, etc.

Grieving to leave you, I am, etc.,

Hd'qrs., 1st Brigade, 2nd Div., 14th Army Corps, near Dallas Tenn., Oct. 28, 1863, 7 P. M. Lieut. Col. C. Goddard A. A. Genl. Dept. of the Cumberland. Col. I have the honor to report nothing of special interest in this locality. Col. John Tilson commanding 10th Ill. Infantry stationed at Igon's Ferry, succeeded in capturing a squad of rebels opposite his camp this afternoon. I regret that this credible action on his part could not have been rendered still more so by larger facilities for crossing the river. The men captured consist of a quartermaster, sergeant and four privates of the 1st Arkansas Battery light artillery. I will send them to Chattanooga early in the morning. I send enclosed copy of Col. Tilson's report. Col. Tilson reports that he has learned from sources over the river that a conflict has taken place at Lenoir's, and that the rebels have fallen back to the Hiwasse; also that Cheatham's division is moving up the valley.

Tilson, 10th Ills. Inft., stationed at Igon's Ferry, reports that his pickets report that about 2 P. M. today a large force (they say a brigade) of the enemy's cavalry passed up the river turning off from the bank when about opposite his camp, and moving inland. They were over an hour in passing, and were preceded by a large drove of cattle. The Col. also reports that the enemy's pickets opposite him seem to have decreased in the last day or two.

Report of Brig. Genl. James B. Morgan, Comdg. 1st Brigade, including the march to the relief of Knoxville. Hd'qrs. 1st. Brigade, 2nd Div. 14th Army Corps, Camp near Rossville, Ga., Dec. 30th, 1863. At 2 A. M. on the morning of the 26th at the right of the division my brigade crossed the Chicamauga, near its confluence with the Tenn. river, and commenced on march on Chiakamauga Station in the following order. Three companies of the 21st Kentucky, 60th Ills., 10th Mich., and 10th Ills. on the left. The advance met the enemy's pickets about two miles to the north and west of the station, and drove them steadily through the timber and across an open field to a ridge about one mile this side of the station. At this point by order of Genl. Davis, the line of battle was formed 60th Ills. on the right, 10th Mich. in the center and 10th Ills. on the left. Skirmishing line advanced, assisted by two section of Barnett's Battery, the enemy giving way, but showing considerable resistance. The line was halted on Pigeon Ridge and reconnoisance made, and battery of the enemy discovered at the foot of the ridge which soon opened fire upon our line. Our battery getting range silenced that of the enemy, and three regiments of my brigade pushing forward a line of battle and in most admirable order, the 10th Ills., Col. Tilson commanding, was then ordered forward to relieve the 21st Kentucky. This fine regiment was promptly deployed as skirmishers, and moved forward, and upon reaching the line of the enemy's fire with a cheer in which the 21st Kentucky most heartily joined, both regiments most gallantly charged up the ridge, and was soon in possession of the heights. Upon arriving at the station everything indicated a hasty retreat. The depot was in flames, and other buildings containing commissary stores; but a large amount of stores fell into our hands, together with four siege guns, pontoon boats, etc. Jas. D. Morgan, Brig. Genl., to Capt. T. W. Morrison.

Report of Brig. Genl., Jeff. C. Davis, Comd'g, 2nd Div., including march to the relief of Knoxville. Hd'qrs. 2nd Div., 14th Army Corps, McAfee Church, Ga., April 1st, 1863.

I have the honor to submit the following report of the part performed by this division during the operations which resulted in driving the enemy's forces from their position on Mission Ridge in front of Chattanooga, also its participation in the campaign to Knoxville and return, under command of Genl. Sherman for the relief of the troops under Maj. Genl. Burnsides. Nov. 19th. Commenced to concentrate command on the Tenn. river at Caldwell's Crossing four miles above Chattanooga, and opposite the point on Mission Ridge, against which it was intended the forces under Maj. Genl. Sherman should operate. Maj. Genl. Howard arrived with the 11th Corps. Enemy's cavalry discovered, but made little resistance until the head of Morgan's brigade reached the railroad, where it crossed Chicamauga Creek. Kentucky loyal was now meeting Kentucky rebel face to face. The enthusiasm it created ran through the lines like an electric thrill. The order to advance and attack the field works in their front was received with a cheer, and executed with a dash that soon drove the enemy's skirmishers upon their main line now forward about a quarter of a mile beyond the town to resist our rapid and vigorous advance. The 21st Kentucky deployed, entered as skirmish line, was now hotly engaged, and I ordered Genl. Morgan to send another regiment to its support. The 10th Ills., commanded by Col. Tilson, was designated for the duty, and moved forward in excellent order. Tilson engaged the enemy in front, thus enabling Price to direct his skirmish attack as previously instructed upon the fieldwork on our flanks and into which the enemy's skirmishers had taken refuge. Tilson gallantly charged the enemy in front, and soon caused him to fall back in great haste. Price's skirmishers after a sharp conflict, took the field work. The enemy retired in the direction of Graysville. Thus ended a very gallant little fight which reflected great credit upon the troops engaged in it, and resulted in our capturing several cannons among them two 24 pound siege guns, considerable commissary, quartermaster and ordnance stores were also captured and saved, notwithstanding the efforts of the enemy to destroy them. Genl. Sherman arrived at the head of the column about this time. McCook pushed forward with two regiments of his brigade, Morgan came promptly up in reserve in excellent line of battle. I was tempted to make a general attack, but it was now quite dark.

MAJ. R. M. SAWYER, Asst. A. Genl.

From report of Brig. Genl. Jefferson C. Davis, Com'd'g, 2nd Div. of operations, May 1st to Aug. 22nd, 1864, near Atlanta, Ga. May 7th. Moved on direct road to Tunnel Hill, enemy's cavalry encountered skirmishing until head of column reached Smith's house within cannon range of the enemy's position at Tunnel Hill. At this point enemy opened his artillery. I made disposition of my troops, placed a few guns in position, and ordered them to return fire, which was promptly executed. Maj. Genl. Howard's corps moved from Cherokee Spring from the direction of Cleveland and formed a junction with my command at this point. Genl. Howard sent a force to operate on the north end of Tunnel Hill, while a strong line of skirmishers from McCook's brigade gallantly commanded by Maj. Holmes 52nd Ohio Infantry, attacked the enemy's position below the town near where the road leading to Dalton crosses the hill. These movements assisted by the action of the batteries caused the enemy to withdraw from his position and retreat toward Buzzard Roosts. In compliance with orders I moved my entire division beyond the town, and took position on the right of the Dalton road, and sent a regiment from Morgan's Brigade to take possession of the high round hill immediately in front known to us as Signal Hill. This duty was well performed by the 10th Ills. regiment, commanded by Colonel Tilson. During the succeeding three days my troops were kept more or less under fire. The enemy after persistent and sometimes heavy skirminshing, was driven into his works in the gorge, and upon the top of Rocky Face. The operations of those three days were mostly executed, and the fighting done by Genl. Morgan's brigade.

Report of Brig. Genl. John W. Fuller, 4th Div., 16th Army Corps. Hd'qrs. near Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 2nd, 1864. Aug. 20th, the 17th N. Y. (Col. Tilson) being assigned to the 16th corps, took the place of the 17th New York in the 3rd Brigade. The record of this regiment, though belonging properly to the history of the 14th Army Corps, will be found among the accompanying papers, and is one which the regiment may refer to with satisfaction. In Col. Morrill, Lieut. McDowell, as well as Col. Tilson, who recently commanded the 3rd Brigade, I have ever found an able and willing support. They have my thanks for the promptness and ability with which I have been aided.

No. 564. Report of Col. John Tilson, 10th Ills. Inft., Commanding 3rd Brigade of operations, Aug. 20th, Sept. 6th. Hd'qrs. 3rd Brigade, 4th Div. 16th Army Corps.

Near Jonesborough, Sept. 6th, 1864.

Capt. In compliance with special order No. 102 current series, 4th Div., 16th Army Corps, I have the honor to report my connection with this brigade was made on the 20th of Aug., and for its history prior to the period, I must refer to the reports (accompanying) of commanding officers of 25th Indiana and 32nd Wisconsin. The operations of the 17th New York, which on the 20th ult., was transferred to the 14th Army Corps, and which up to that time had been a portion of the brigade, are I presume, generally embraced in the reports above named. The brigade as originally constituted, remained in Decatur, Ala., from the 1st of May last, until the 5th of August, when it left by R. R'd for the front, and reported to the division in front of Atlanta on the 7th. It remained doing picket duty and holding position within one mile and a half of Atlanta. . . . . on the southeast, until the 17th N. Y. was taken out and the 10th Ills. Inf. added to the organization, the command devolving upon Col. John Tilson of the 10th Ills., as senior officer. The operations have been unimportant during the two weeks of my command, except as they claim connection with the bold and brilliant movements of the armies of the Cumberland and Tennessee, resulting in the forced abandonment of Atlanta and the successful close of a four months' campaign. The history of the 10th Ills. perhaps during most of this period belongs to the army and corps with which it was formerly associated, but as it will then be unrecorded I must make it a brief mention. It left Roseville, Ga., on the morning of the 2nd of May, reached Ringgold the same day, remained there until the 7th, when it formed the advance of the brigade and division in the movement towards Dalton and Tunnel Hill, passing through the latter place, from which the enemy was driven with but slight opposition. One-half of the regiment was deployed as skirmishers and took an advanced position on Horn Hill, near Buzzard's Roost, to the right of the R. Road, where the regiment lay detached for two days. On the 9th it was moved forward and participated with the 16th Ills. in a fruitless attempt to carry by assault the rebel position at Buzzard's Roost. Moved on the morning of the 12th to the west by way of Snake (Creek) Gap toward Resaca, passing through the army of the Tenn. on the morning of the 13th; on the 14th placed in position several times as supporting force to 1st Div. 14th Army Corps; at night moved to the right, relieving portion of 20th Corps; 15th lay in trenches all day under sharp picket fire; lost several men, among them Adj. Rice, a singularly meritorious young officer. On the 16th the division started for Rome; reached there on the 17th, and after brisk skirmishing, resulting in considerable loss, drove the rebels out of the town and took possession on the morning of the 18th. Left Rome on the 24th. Marched by Burnt Hickory, near Van Wert. Drove on the morning of the 26th rebel advance out of Dallas, the 10th being advanced here formed connection on the right with army of the Tenn. Remained at Dallas under severe and constant picket skirmishing, which cost a number of men, until 1st of June, when the division was moved to the left and joined the Corps near Lost Mountain. Moved on the 6th to camp near Acworth, thence until the 19th, making short advances until brought up opposite Mount Kenesaw. Lay until 26th under severe cannonade from the mountain. On the 27th moved to the right; formed supporting column in unsuccessful assault along the front of the 4th and 14th Corps. Followed enemy from Marietta by Nickajack to the Chattahooche River on the 5th. Lay in camp until the 17th, crossed the river above R. R'd bridge on pontoon; had quite spirited fight on the 18th. Maj. Wilson and Capt. Munson disabled for the campaign. From this time its history is that of the army in general, fortifying daily, skirmishing, swinging to the right until it was transferred on the 20th of Aug. to the army of the Tenn. The casualties of the command are as follows: Officers killed, 2; wounded, 6; men killed, 23; wounded, 90; missing, 18.

JOHN TILSON, Col. Com'd'g Brigade.

Report of Capt. Geo. C. Lusk, 10th Ills. Inft. Hd'qrs. 10th Ills. Infty., near Jonesborough, Ga., Sept. 6th, 1864. On May 1st received orders to be ready to move at daylight the next morning —— and driving the enemy. . . . July 3rd followed them through Marietta; on the 7th in plain sight of the rebel works. 20th transferred from 14th Army Corps into 16th Army Corps. Col. Tilson was detached from the regiment on our arrival in this corps and command devolved upon Capt. G. C. Lusk of Company K. On the 2d Sept. an order was sent around to the troops from Genl. Sherman to the effect that Atlanta was taken and the campaign was ended. The following is a list of the casualties in the 10th Ills. Infantry during the campaign commencing May 1st and ending Sept 2nd, 1864: Commissioned officers killed 1, wounded 4, enlisted men killed 13, wounded 66, missing 10. Names of the commissioned officers killed and wounded in 10th Ills. Infantry, Adjt. W. W. Rice killed, Maj. Sam'l J. Wilson, wounded in left thigh, severe; Capt.

Frank Munson, wounded, left arm amputated; Capt. Chas. Carpenter, wounded left hand, third finger amputated; Lieut. Sam. K. Baughman, wounded, right shoulder, slight.

Report of Brig. Genl. John M. Corse, 2nd Div. Hd'qrs 16th Army Corps, near East Point, Ga., Sept. 8th, 1864: Aug. 31st. On west bank of Flint river, about 2 miles from Jonesborough. At 2 P. M. our skirmishers were pushed in. The enemy charged, advancing squarely over our works, our men were restrained until the enemy came out of the field of corn. They were received by a tremendous volley along Adams' Brigade. The rebel lines break, seeing columns moving to the right I sent to Genl. Ransom a request for the 3rd brigade from the 4th Div. to support my right. Col. Tilson's brigade arrived before the enemy could take advantage of our weakness; threw two regiments on our right and secured that point.

John M. Corse, Brig. Genl. Com'd'g.

Report of Brig. Genl. Thos. E. G. Ransom, Left Wing, 16th Army Corps operations. Aug. 19th to Sept. 8th. Hd'qrs, East Point, Ga., Sept. 14th, 1864: After skirmishing, reached west side Flint Creek on the 31st. 2nd Div. crossed the creek. 3 P. M. heavy firing commenced on Genl. Logan's front and soon Genl. Corse's division became engaged. The 3rd Brigade, 4th Div., was ordered across the creek as a reserve for Gen'l Corse, with one regiment, the 10th Ills. Infantry, in line on the right of the 2nd Div. The enemy charged Genl. Corse's line but were handsomely repulsed and fell back in confusion when the 66th Ind. Infantry was ordered by Genl. Corse to charge across the field in their front, and did so in fine style, capturing 24 prisoners. Our loss was light, 1 officer and 1 man killed and 16 men wounded. That of the enemy was comparatively severe, 57 of their dead were buried in our front; 92 prisoners captured during the day. Their loss probably 500 men.

Report of Brevet Brig. Genl. Green B. Raum, U. S. A., Hd'qrs 2nd Brigade, 3rd Div. 15th Army Corps, Cartersville, Ga., Nov. 10th, 1864: Upon arriving at Kingston I met Lieut. Col. Clark and Brig. Gen'l Ransom, commanding 17th Army Corps, who informed me that the brigade would be taken from the 17th Army Corps. It was not until 3 P. M. that the troops arrived, and then but one regiment, to wit, the 10th Ills., under the command of Col. Tilson; with these I started to Calhoun by R. R'd, losing some time north of Adaursville repairing the track which had been torn up by a party of the enemy which had crossed the Oosternala for that purpose. Arriving at Resaca, Genl. Raum assumed command of forces, a number of regiments, among them the 10th Ills., commanded by Col. Tilson.

Report made to Capt. T. M. Budbong, Act'g Asst. Adj. Genl. Hd'qrs 1st Div. 17th Army Corps. In the field, Fa., Dec. 3rd, 1864.

Troops of this command will be prepared to march tomorrow morning at 8 A. M. (among others) Col. John Tilson commanding 3rd Brigade will move his command out tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock to a point on the R. Road three miles east of Station No. 7, where he will commence the destruction of the R. R'd and will break it for a distance of 3 miles east. After having thoroughly completed the work of destruction he will join the column by the most practicable route. By order Maj. Genl. Joseph A. Mower.

Report of Maj. Genl. Jos. A. Mower, com'd'g 1st Div. 17th Army Corps, Hd'qrs near Savannah, Ga., Dec. 31st, 1864. Capt: In compliance with orders I have the honor to submit the following report of the operation of my command during the recent campaign. My Division left Marietta, Ga., on the 13th Nov., and reached Atlanta the same day. Arrived at Gordon on the 22nd Nov. On the 30th at Ojeechee River, destroying R. R'd on the way. Dec. 9th my command had the advance. We found the enemy in position behind an earth-work at end of causeway leading through a swamp, swamp extending around both of their flanks. Brig. Genl. Sprague's Brigade, with section of artillery detached to engage the enemy in front whilst I took two brigades, Genl. Fuller's and Col. Tilson's, around the enemy's right. The troops waded through a cypress swamp to get to the enemy's works. The enemy returned as we approached. We drove them about 7 miles, skirmishing with them constantly, artillery being used on both sides. I lost one of my staff officers on that day; killed, Lieut. W. H. Hamrick. Returned to camp the 21st, having marched 80 miles. Am't of R. R'd destroyed in the campaign, 57 miles. Res'y, CAPT. C. CADLER, JR., A. A. G.

Report of Col. John Tilson, 10th Ills. Inf., 3rd Brigade, of operations. Feby. 2-4-9 and March 21st. Hd'qrs 3rd Brigade, 1st Div., 17th Army Corps, River's Bridge, Feby. 4th, 1865. Lieut: I have the honor to report that the Brigade under my command moved from camp in the field 21 miles north of Pocatalyo on the Barnwell road, at 7 A. M. on the 2nd inst., in the advance of the division. The 25th Indiana being on the skirmish line, having four companies deployed. When about a mile from camp the enemy's pickets were struck and a cavalry force of at least one large regiment was driven steadily for about three miles. At one time they formed in line of battle and at another point strove to turn our right by a sudden charge, but were promptly repulsed with loss, three falling at a single discharge. The 25th followed the retreating enemy down the road to Broxton's Bridge, holding position there until relieved at sunset by a regiment of the 4th Div. When the 25th moved down the Boxton Bridge road the 32nd Wis. was brought to the front and held the road forward during the demonstration on the right. On advancing the enemy were found in force, barricaded and stubborn. They were driven rapidly, however, the regiment in echelon by division on the double-quick, in connection with the 9th Ills. Cavalry (mounted infantry) driving them forward, affording us time for rally or resistance. At the point where the River Bridge road turns to the right I was ordered to clear the road forward for half a mile and hold position there. This was done and the brigade went into camp covering the junction of the roads. The 10th Iowa reported to me in the evening from Genl. Smith's division and was placed on the left of my line. On the morning of the 4th I was ordered into the swamp of the Salkhatchie, two regiments, the 32nd Wisconsin and 25th Indiana, taking the left of the River's Bridge road and the 10th Ills. the right. The enemy were strongly posted on the opposite bank. Heavy earth-works of four guns completely raking the road for nearly half a mile. After a wearisome file through the swamp of about half a mile I established the brigade on the banks of the first branch of the river which appears to run in three channels, all unfordable. Here I deployed three companies of the 32nd Wis. as skirmishers, also placing a picket force of 15 men under Lieut. Johnston in a rifle pit in the road within 200 yards of the rebel battery, with instructions to keep down the enemy's gunners. This last duty was handsomely executed by the trusty officer in command. Shortly after this, by your order, I sent three more companies to the skirmish line, doubling its strength. Their progress was exceedingly difficult, through water, sometimes waist-deep, and exposed to a close and accurate fire.

They crossed the two branches of the river on logs without severe loss, and about 12 o'clock Lieut. Col. Carleton reported that he had made a crossing of the third and last channel about 899 yards above, and asked for additional men. The remaining 3 companies of the regiment were sent to him by the adjutant in my temporary absence, and on learning the importance of this movement I moved up with the 25th Indiana. The progress was very slow, the troops being compelled to move singly and at intervals crossing two streams on a single log and picking their way through the tangled undergrowth. The 25th Indiana formed in line of battle with a part of the 32nd withdrawn from the skirmish line on the left. I had made two advances with the main line of about 100 yards each when Genl. Fuller came up with the 1st Brigade and directed my command to halt while he formed the 1st Brigade on the left. The ammunition of the skirmishers getting low, I was compelled to add a company to the 25th. The enemy was being all this time steadily pressed back, but with severe loss to us. Hearing that dry ground was in sight ahead and at the same time receiving an order from you to advance, I did so at once, sending word to Genl. Fuller that I had been ordered to move and was in motion and clearing the skirts of the swamp, drove the enemy over a large open field, securing our lodgement and vacating of the works on the right. Pressing up as directed to the abandoned fort, I found there two companies, being the advance of the 10th Ills., which had crossed early in the afternoon, and though unable to move farther had gallantly sustained their position on the northern bank and entered the fort, when our advance on the left had forced its abandonment by the enemy. The direction given by you to that regiment to move in connection with the advance of the left of the brigade were fully and I think satisfactorily carried out by its efficient commander. I mentioned with pleasure the conduct of officers and men, marked as it was by courage, enterprise and endurance under singularly trying and difficult circumstances. The action of my Brigade Staff was all that I could wish, and to regimental commanders, Lieut. Cols. Carleton and Wright and Capt. Gillespie; also to the officers in charge of the skirmishers, Majors Burrows and Creushaw and Capt. Race, high praise is due. Col. Carleton's disposition was excellent. Permit me also to mention an obligation to Lieut. Christensen, whose conduct and suggestion contributed so much to our early crossing and successful lodgement. Our loss has been 1 commissioned officer killed and 2 wounded, 8 enlisted men killed and 74 wounded (several of whom have since died), and one man captured. Many of the enemy were left dead on the field; 14 prisoners were taken. I append a tabular statement of casualties.

Report of Maj. Genl. Jos. A. Mower, 17th Army Corps. Near River's Bridge, S. C., Feby. 5, 1865. Command left camp near Pocatalings, S. C., 1st Feby. Kept driving enemy until I reached swamp near Whilly Creek, when cavalry proceeded on left hand road, finding obstructions and enemy holding opposite side causeway, ordered one regiment forward to drive enemy and clear roads, ordered forward movement. Feby. 2nd. Struck the enemy 1½ miles from my camp and drove them across Broxton's Bridge. At this point Col. Kirby, with 9th Ills. mounted Infantry, took the advance, driving the enemy 3 miles, making one splendid charge, in which Col. Kirby was wounded. Enemy very stubborn, so I ordered another regiment to deploy, then drove the enemy rapidly. I left Col. Tilson with two regiments of his brigade on the Buford road with orders to drive the enemy one mile and remain there until relieved by another force of the Corps. Feby. 3. Cutting timber and repairing road in order to be able to move forward. Before doing this had relieved the two regiments left in the swamp during the night by the 3rd Brigade, the 10th Ills. taking position on the right of the road and the balance of Col. Tilson's command on the left. At 2 P. M. Lieut Christensen of my staff reported to me that Lieut. Col. Carleton of Col. Tilson's command had crossed the main river at 12 M. with two companies. I at once ordered Col. Tilson to send Lieut. Col. Carleton with his whole regiment over and at the same time ordered Genl. Fuller's and Col. Montgomery's brigade, who were in camp down the road, so as to have them well in hand. I then directed Col. Tilson to move his remaining regiment over the river, only leaving a skirmish line on this side. After he had effected the crossing I ordered Genl. Fuller with his brigade to cross also. This order was conveyed to him by Capt. De Gress of my staff, who reported to me after he had delivered that order that Genl. Fuller had asked him whether he should form on the left of Col. Tilson's brigade, and that he told him to use his own judgment about forming, but that Col. Tilson was driving the enemy and that Genl. Mower would be over there shortly and wanted the enemy pushed as rapidly as possible. All pushed forward rapidly, repairing roads and bridges under difficulties. The enemy concentrated most of his forces in the earth-works opposite the bridge. I passed along the line for the purpose of seeing Genl. Fuller. Genl. F. was directed to swing around his left, but he had already given the order. But the main fighting was over. I advanced to a belt of timber and halted, it being quite dark, but pushed skirmishers forward at double quick, who found that the rebels had evacuated their works, and Capt. Gillespie hearing firing at the left, according to my previous orders moved this regiment across the river and was already in possession of the enemy's works. Col. Tilson's attack on the enemy before the arrival of Genl. Fuller and Col. Montgomery's brigade, caused the enemy to fall back from his works, leaving only a skirmish line in our front. I very much regret that Col. Fuller took the responsibility of ordering Col. Tilson to halt his brigade, whereas if he (Col. Tilson) had been allowed to push forward according to

To Capt. C. Cadle, Jr., Asst. A. G.

Hd'qrs. 3d Brigade, 1st Div., 17 Army Corps. Near Columbia, S. C., Feby. 18th, 1865. Lieutenant: In compliance with order for report of the part taken by the Brigade under my command at the passage of the South Edisto on the 9th inst., I respectfully submit the following, promising that most of the movements were made under the eye and personal directions of the general commanding the division. I moved from Midway on the 9th inst. at 8 A. M. in advance of the division, up the Augusta road, turning to the right down the road leading to Brunaker's Bridge. When within half a mile of the river I was ordered to form and advance my command in columns of regiments on the right of the road, half a regiment deployed as skirmishers and half a regiment also sent off to cover a road leading on the left to the river. My skirmish line reached the bank with but little opposition, but was there checked, the river being some 40 or 50 yards in width, unfordable, the bridge completely destroyed, and a battery and rifle-pit some 200 yards distant, effectually commanding the crossing. The opposite banks above and below for a long distance were submerged. The construction of rafts, which was commenced by the general's directions, was much embarrassed by the fire both of artillery and musketry. The skirmishers reported about noon seeing about 150 yards below the bridge and out of the sight of the enemy a fence coming nearly to the river bank on the opposite side, and judging that ground there must be higher a road was cut to the bank, planks brought down and rafts made. Those made above also being caught as they floated down. A squad of men was ferried over and a rope stretched across. Pontoons were then brought through the swamp and 3 companies of the 32nd Wisconsin crossed quietly and rapidly, having to wade about 20 yards after reaching the bank. On the laying of the pontoon bridge my entire command was passed over and moved immediately to the right for about three-quarters of a mile, flanking the enemy's position and finally, after having to wade for 50 rods in water, most of the distance more than mid-leg deep, I struck an open field about 8 P. M. I then was obliged to wait for some time to secure the closing up of my command and the assurance of a supporting position of the brigade following. While then lying in plain sight of the enemy's picket fire and keeping close under the shadow of the woods, the skirmish line of the enemy was seen advancing on us. Trusting that they would not come close to my position I had given directions to my men to return no fire except under orders. I had at the time a single company in my front deployed, three being to my left, covering that flank I immediately directed my men to lie down. The enemy came on to within fifty feet of us, challenged, and commenced firing. I ordered a return fire, which immediately drove them back with the loss of their commander, Major Hulsey, killed, and three prisoners. Could I then have advanced I might perhaps have secured more prisoners, but deeming it more prudent to secure the lodgement already made and having only one regiment and half of another yet out of the swamp, I advanced my skirmishers only until my entire brigade was out and Col. Montgomery had landed his leading regiment, when I pushed to the road and woods about one-third of a mile distant, under a light fire, took possession of the enemy's camp, scattering his entire rear guard through the woods and capturing one caisson in perfect condition. The force opposed to us was reported to be two brigades from Hodd's army under Genl. Jackson. I earnestly commend the behavior of my men. Scarcely anything could be more trying than their wading in the dark through the deep cold water, stumbling at every step, and their clothing afterwards frozen stiff. Their zeal and skill in obtaining the passage of the river and quiet and soldierly conduct after was eminently praiseworthy. Private Wait of Company E. of the 32nd Wisconsin, who swam out and brought in one of the rafts deserves mention. My loss was 1 killed and 5 wounded, all enlisted men.

LIEUT. CHAS. CHRISTENSEN, Act'g Ast. A. Genl., 1st Div., 17th Army Corps.

From report of Maj. Genl. Frank P. Blair, Jr., commanding 17th Army Corps, operations Jany. 2nd to Mch. 21st, 1865. April 1st, 1865. Goldsborough, N. C., near Salkehatchie River, near Buford Swampy land. On higher land enemy had built story line of earth works. Two story redoubts and batteries commanding approaches. Sixteen bridges exclusive of main bridge exposed to enemy's fire. Maj. Genl. Mower having been ordered to effect crossing at River's Bridge, commenced work at daylight cutting road through almost impassable swamps, collecting lumber, etc. Col. Tilson of the 1st Div. Brigade had for some time been attempting to force a crossing above and below the bridge. About 12 M. Col. Tilson reported that he had crossed two companies above. He was immediately ordered to push across with the balance of his command. The 10th Ills. having reported that they could cross below the bridge they were ordered forward. Col. Fuller's and Col. Montgomery's brigades were also ordered to follow Col. Tilson across the river above. The movement on the right by the 10th Ills. was temporarily checked by the enemy. The center was repulsed but the crossing on the left was a complete success and caused the enemy to withdraw in great confusion, with a loss of 40 prisoners.

To Capt. A. M. Dyke, Ast. A. Genl.

Report of Brig. Genl. John W. Fuller, com'd'g 1st Brigade of operation. Feb. 2-3-9, Mch. 21st, 1865. Mch. 3rd. Swamp near River's bridge (Salkehatchie River). I was ordered to move into the road in the swamp and cross the river. The crossing was difficult and slow owing to deep water in the swamp, etc. As soon as I reached the opposite bank and had learned the situation I notified Col. Tilson that as Genl. Mower was not present I would assume command. I directed him not to advance his command until the troops of my brigade should be formed on his left as I intended to swing forward the left of the line in hopes of outflanking and securing such of the rebels as were at and near their works. In order that no mistake might occur I sent to Col. Tilson and to Col. Sheldon the following written order: "When the line moves forward, Col. Tilson will aim to keep his right on or near the river. Col. Sheldon will dress to the right on Col. Tilson, but be careful not to crowd to the right. Bayonets will be fixed when the bugle sounds 'attention.' If we find the rebels entrenched we must rush forward and carry them by storm. As Col. Sheldon has to swing his left forward Col. Tilson will move slowly at the start. The 18th Mo. will move in reserve behind the interval between the brigades." Col. Montgomery's brigade began to arrive before the 1st Brigade was formed. He was directed to form on the left of the 1st Brigade and the above order was sent to him also, with the additional instruction to form his left regiment faced to the left and to march it thus, i. e., by the right flank. While the line of the 2nd Brigade was forming, Col. Tilson sent me word "that he was advancing by order of Genl. Mower." I then sounded the advance and moved my own brigade forward to the high and open ground near the enemy's position. I halted when abreast of Col. Tilson and then learning that Genl. Mower had not arrived and that the order to advance was one which had been given (so said his adjutant), some hours before, I awaited the arrival of the 2nd Brigade, which was to form the left of the line. As soon as they came up I directed the original order should be carried out. We were advancing rapidly on the left and were executing a right wheel in fine style and driving the rebels before us when the Maj. Genl. arrived and assumed command. Upon reaching the line of woods, which is nearly in rear of enemy's works, we were ordered to halt and our skirmishers soon ascertained that the enemy had abandoned his position and fled. A few willing prisoners were picked up and about 20 dead and wounded rebels were found in a building which had served as a hospital.

Herewith I inclose list of the wounded of this brigade: 7 of the Ohio, and 1 accidental of the 18th Mo. Resp'y,

To LIEUT. CHAS. CHRISTENSEN, Asst. A. G., 1st. Div., 17th Army Corps.

Headquarters 3rd Brigade, 1st Div., 17th Army Corps.
Near Foldsborough, N. C., Mch. 25th, 1865.

Lieut.: I have the honor to report that my brigade moved from camp near Bentonville about 10 A. M., Mch. 21st, on a road to the rear and right of the 15th Corps, in a northwesterly direction toward the ford on Mill Creek. After passing the pickets about three-quarters of a mile the command was halted and a line of battle formed facing almost to the southwest. The 1st Brigade being on my right and two companies of the 10th Ills. advanced as skirmishers. Pushing forward through the open field and into the woods for about 400 yards, the enemy's pickets were met and driven back. Here the line was halted to enable the 1st Brigade to close up on the right and I was directed to add a company to the skirmish line (prolonging it to the left) to which I subsequently added a fourth to insure the proper protection of my left flank and make a connection with one line in that direction. After a somewhat lengthy delay, during which we were subjected to a steady shelling from the enemy in front the connection of the main line was completed and the command moved on through an exceedingly miry and tangled swamp, almost impassable for horsemen. While here my skirmishers reported that their right flank was not connected with the skirmishers of the 1st Brigade and as it afterwards appeared this was the cause during the entire movement to which unfortunate circumstance I must attribute my loss among the right companies of skirmishers. I had only time to report the fact to the Genl. commanding, as further delay was impracticable, and urge watchfulness in that quarter as the connection would soon be made. The main line on emerging from the swamp came up with the advance, which had been held at bay by a thick and well filled line of rifle pits and carried the pits at once though stubbornly held, taking several prisoners. Receiving an order to move by the left flank, I did so, but soon finding that the brigade on my right was moving forward I conformed my movement thereto. The general direction to this time had been about southwest, the left swinging somewhat forward. On closing with the 1st Brigade (about 150 yards forward of the rifle-pits), I was directed to move by the left and flank thus obliquely slightly to the rear for nearly the length of my brigade. The line was then halted and brought to a front. Hardly was this done when the skirmishers on the left were driven in, and being urged forward again fell back, reporting heavy odds before them. Just at this time also both the officers commanding the two right skirmishing companies came in reporting their lines broken by a cavalry charge and an advance of infantry on both flanks. My left was now by the General's personal order moved back, and immediately after the enemy charged in two battalion lines, striking the left almost perpendicularly and extending to the centre with a very heavy skirmish line running opposite my right front. My left then flanked was compelled to slowly give ground and began to swing back toward the center. At this movement the centre of the 25th Indiana, which was my centre regiment, was reported breaking, and hastening there I endeavored to add to the earnest efforts of its field officers to restore order, which was in a great degree effected, though much embarrassed by a confused rush of men coming from somewhere beyond my right and sweeping close along the rear of my line. Seeing that the 10th Ills. on the left was receiving the weight of the fire and being rapidly forced back I ordered a rapid addition to the strength of the pits and threw out a light line of observation covering their front and the left of the 25th Indiana. The line now stood as follows: The 32nd Wisconsin on the right, unmoved as at first, its left thrown back about 30 degrees. The 25th Indiana on the prolongation of the left of the 32nd but more retired; and the 10th fronting as at first, but about 150 yards to the rear of its advanced position, a narrow swamp separating its right from the 15th Ind. I had received an order to hold these pits with my command, and as soon as Genl. Fuller had reformed his lines and passed my rear to move by the left across his rear and take up position on his left. During this time the musketry had nearly ceased but a brisk artillery fire was kept up on us. When the movement was made by the 1st Brigade I followed and formed on its right in two lines, intrenching and picketing strongly well around my right. About 5 P. M. I received orders to pass by Genl. Fuller and take position on his left next to Genl. Force's command, forming in two lines and fortifying. With this ended the movement of the day.

Considering the brevity of the action my loss was heavy. The missing were mostly captured on the skirmish line by cavalry which had got into the rear of the line. My men all did their duty well. One wounded, retaken from the enemy report their loss far beyond our own, and not only that the attack was stayed, but the rebel lines badly disordered. The falling back was unavoidable, but all the regiments were in hand. To regimental commanders commendation is due. Lieut. Col. Carleton, Lieut. Col. Wright and Capt. Gillespie proved as always sure reliances. Maj. Crenshaw's personal action in seizing and planting the colors prevented, I think, the 25th centre from breaking. My own staff were everywhere active, skillful and cool, and deserve my thanks.

My loss is as follows: Killed, 8; wounded, 65; missing, 22; total, 95. Resp'y, Gen. Davis Tilson was born in Rockland, Me., April 14, 1830, and obtained his education at the West Point Military Academy. He was obliged to resign, after two years, owing to an accident, which rendered the amputation of one of his lower limbs necessary.

In 1857 Gen. Tilson was elected to the Maine Legislature, and the succeeding year was adjutant general of the state.

He was appointed collector of customs for the Waldoboro district by President Lincoln, which position he resigned in 1860 to become captain of the 2d Maine Battery. He was detained in Maine during the winter owing to the threatened difficulty with England, but finally reached Washington in April, 1862, and was assigned to the Army of the Rappahannock under McDowell. He was promoted major and made chief of artillery in Gen. Ord's division. After the battle of Cedar Mountain, Aug. 9, 1862, he was assigned to Gen. McDowell's staff as chief of artillery, in which capacity he served during the three days' fight at Rappahannock station, and then at the second battle of Bull Run. Subsequently, until April, 1863, he was inspector of artillery, and in January was made lieutenant colonel. March 29, he was ordered to Cincinnati, having been commissioned brigadier general, and made chief of artillery for fortifications in the Department of the Ohio. He had charge of the defences of Cincinnati and the works on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, and raised and organized two regiments of heavy artillery. Later he supervised various works at Knoxville, and was given a brigade in the 23d Army Corps, which he commanded in several engagements with confederate cavalry and irregular troops during the winter of 1863-4. He continued in charge of these works, which were officially commended as the best in the military division of the Mississippi, and also organized the 1st U. S. heavy artillery of colored troops and the 3d North Carolina mounted infantry.

Subsequently he had command of the district of East Tennessee until early in 1865, when he was transferred to the 4th division of the Department of the Cumberland, and held that command until the close of the war. He then offered his resignation, which was not accepted, and he remained on duty until Dec. 1, 1866, in charge of the freedmen's bureau at Memphis and subsequently in Georgia. For a year he remained in the latter state in the cotton business. Selling out, he came north, bought Hurricane Island, 12 miles from Rockland, and organized a company to develop its rich granite interests. Fully 1,000 men were employed there at one time. Several years ago the quarries were released to another concern, and Gen. Tilson, confined his attention to the extensive orange groves which he had bought and placed in cultivation at Deland, Fla. These groves are probably the largest in Florida. Gen. Tilson has displayed wide public spirit in his native city, and his benevolent acts have rendered him greatly beloved. He had a very kindly feeling for his comrades of the war, and made Edwin Libby Post, to which he belonged, many valuable presents. He was a republican in politics, and represented his ward in the city government. He died April 30, 1896, of heart disease. Gen. Tilson is estimated to have been worth over half a million dollars.

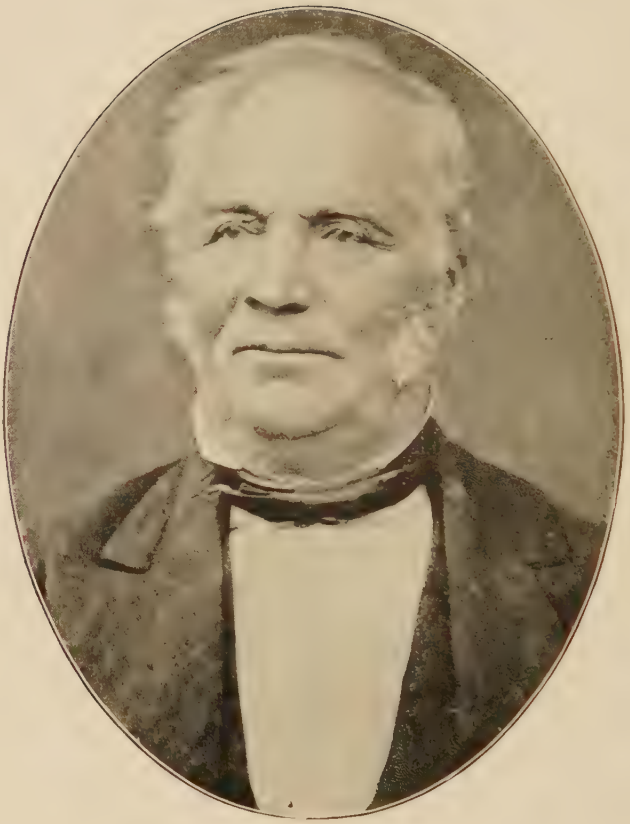
518 Madaline Abbott Tilson, b. Sept. 20, 1888, in Omaha, Neb.

George William Tilson was born at Thomaston, Me., Dec. 18, 1852, of Puritan ancestry, being a direct descendant of Edmond Tilson of Plymouth, 1638. Mr. Tilson was fitted for college in the pubilc schools of Thomaston, and graduated from Bowdoin in 1877. He taught school in Maine and Massachusetts for the first three years after graduation. In Feb., 1880, he went to Memphis, Tenn., and had charge of certain portions of the Waring system of sewerage, under Col. George E. Waring, Jr. In Aug., 1880, he went to Kalamazoo, Mich., where he made plans for a system of sewerage for that city, and superintended the construction of the same in 1881. In Oct. of 1881 he went to Omaha, Neb., and had charge of the construction of the Waring system of sewerage that had then been adopted for that place. For five years he superintended the construction of sewers and pavements in Omaha, having charge of the first asphalt pavement laid west of the Mississippi River. In 1887 he was appointed city engineer of Omaha, which position he held until 1892. During his incumbency of this office a vast amount of public work of all nature was constructed. From 1892 to 1895 he was engaged in private engineering and contracting work in Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming. In 1895 he was appointed assistant engineer in the Department of City Works in Brooklyn, N.

GEORGE W. TILSON.



COL. EDWARD C. TILSON.

Y., and given especial charge of pavement construction. He held this position until 1902, when he was appointed chief engineer of the Bureau of Highways for the Borough of Brooklyn, under the new Greater New York charter. This position he held until June, 1907, when he was transferred to a similar position in the Borough of Manhattan. He continued in this office until May 1st, 1911, when he was made consulting engineer of the Borough of Brooklyn, New York City. Mr. Tilson has been prominent in engineering societies, having been president and secretary of the Nebraska Association of Engineers and Surveyors, president of Brooklyn Engineers' Club, secretary and president of the American Society of Municipal Improvements, president of the Municipal Engineers of the City of New York, a director of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and is at present president of the Association for Standardizing Paving Specifications, an organization made up of city officials of the principals cities of this country. He has also written many articles on paving subjects for the above societies, as well as engineering journals, and is the author of "Street Pavements and Paving Material," a work on the construction of pavements, published by John Wiley & Sons in 1900. Mr. Tilson is also a member of the Midwood Club of Flatbush, of which he has twice been president; a member of the Zeta Psi Fraternity and a member of the Phi Beta Kapa Alumni Association of the City of New York.

525 Martha S. Tilson, b. March 12, 1847, in Charlestown, Mass.

526 Clarance H. Tilson, b. Sept. 26, 1856, in Deer Park, Md.

Adopted dau., Mona (Grimm) Tilson; b. about 1865; m. Dec. 1, 1891, at Oakland, Md., E. M. Spedden.

Col. Tilson was educated at the public schools in Thomaston, Me., where he acquired the common branches of an English education such as were usually taught in those days. It was the custom then to have a three months' summer session, taught by a lady, for the younger children, and a three months' winter session by a gentleman for large scholars. His father being a farmer and requiring Edward's services on the farm, his schooling during the six or nine months' vacation was necessarily suspended. His inclination being mechanical, he was not so well satisfied with farming, so he was apprenticed to the house and ship carpentering trade, working in his native town until he became of age. He then set out on a tour through the Southern States and the West Indies, working at his trade wherever he stopped. After two years he returned home, engaging in ship and house building on his own account, continuing until 1845, when he removed to Massachusetts, following his trade in Boston and adjacent cities until 1852. The climate of Boston being unfavorable to his health, he accepted a position as agent of a coal company in Maryland, where he has remained among the mountains, engaged in the coal and lumber business, with the exception of three years on a farm in Centralia, Boon Co., Missouri, during the late war. Mr. Tilson being a captain in the State Militia of Maine, was in 1832 elected colonel of the 4th Regt., 2d Brigade, 4th Div., which he held for several years, when he resigned. During the period of his command the Aroostook War occurred. He was detailed to command a regiment of drafted men to protect the timber interests on the Northeast boundary, but before the troops came in collision the trouble was settled by Gen. Scott and the British minister. Col. Tilson has been postmaster in both Allegany and Garrett counties, Md.; has also been justice of the peace, county surveyor and president of the board of county commissioners of Garrett county. In 1829 he became a member of Orient Lodge of Masons in Maine. Removing to Massachusetts, he became a member of King Solomon Lodge, Charlestown. Has been a retired member since he went to Maryland. He had been a prominent member of temperance organizations for more than forty years, addressing the public on that subject. In his travels between the States and the West Indies in 1830-31, he several times encountered in the Gulf of Mexico pirates that infested the coast of Florida and other localities, and had several running fights, but escaped. At one time while a passenger on a brigantine in the Gulf of Mexico, the yellow fever broke out and the crew reduced to one man. With his assistance, and such knowledge as Mr. Tilson had acquired of navigation while a passenger, they managed to reach Moro Castle, Havana, after 18 days. Signals of distress were made, and some boats from an English ship of war and United States man of war brought them into port in a crippled condition. Nearly all the sails were blown away, there not being men enough to take care of them.

In early life Col. Tilson was trained in the Congregational Church, but afterwards accepted the Universalist doctrine. His first vote for President was for John Q. Adams. He has voted every election since that time. The colonel was a man of strong character and of prepossessing appearance, more than medium size and of fine form. His social qualities were of the highest order, and his genial manner was patent to all who came in contact with him.

Grace Tilson, perhaps dau. of Edmund and Elizabeth (Waterman) Tilson, m. as early as 1721* William Gould, it is not known from where he came. He was evidently in Bridgewater, Mass., some years before the building of the church in 1746, (which was then called the West Parish of Pembroke). He bought a pew, giving thirty pounds old Tenor. He lived in that part of Bridgewater which was annexed to Pembroke in 1754, on Holmes street in Hanson, Mass. He was a man of some wealth and active in the affairs of the Parish; d Ap'l 8, 1774. She d. Mar. 2, 1775. The statement that William Gould's wife was Grace Tilson, and date of both of their deaths was made by Prof. B. A. Gould. (Gould Gen.) I believe she was dau. of Edmund and Elizabeth Tilson, and can find no other Tilson family wherein she could possibly be placed. It is unfortunate that we have not better authority of William Gould and Grace his wife. Boston Records give m. of William Gould and Rachel Barry, June 22, 1719, and birth of William, Nov. 23, 1723, son of Wm. and Rachel. This Wm. Gould did buy land in Bridgewater, Oct. 11, 1723, and in a few weeks sold the same, deed signed by Wm. and Rachel Gould of Boston, Mass. For want of better evidence, it seems best to carry out the following families under the name Tilson.

Elisha Dungan and wife emigrated to Indiana from Virginia about 1827, and settled on Hurricane Creek, Johnson Co., where they lived and died. They endured the various trials and hardships of those days with fortitude, and lived a christian life, doing well their duty in that state of life in which it hath pleased God to call them. They had twelve children, three died in infancy, the remaining nine growing to manhood and womanhood, and proved successful men and women in their various communities. Elisha Dungan was a popular man in Johnson Co., and had a reputation for honesty and justness of dealings, which is the best heritage a man can leave to his family. In politics he was an old line Whig, and afterwards a strong Republican. He died April 16, 1863. She d. Oct., 1863.

2069 Myrtle Evelyn Dungan, b. Oct. 31, 1882, in Franklin, Ind.

Stephen W. Dungan lived on the farm with his parents until he was sixteen years of age, acquiring a common school education. He taught school winters and worked on the farm summers until 1860, when he went to Chicago and studied music under the supervision of Bradbury, Root and Mason. He then returned to Indiana and became a successful teacher in music until Aug. 1862, when he enlisted in the army in the Seventeenth Ind. Infantry, Co. I, as second lieutenant. He was under Gen. Rosecrans in Tenn. and Ky. Sickness caused him to resign and he returned home in 1863. After his father's death he became possessor of the home place of 160 acres, but rented and taught music until 1866. He has been largely identified in raising cattle, horses and sheep. His farm now contains 350 acres of highly cultivated lands.

Betsey Tilson died, 1850, both are buried in West Marietta cemetery.

My father never knew anything about his sisters after they left Halifax, Mass. In 1895 I visited Marietta, hoping to get some trace of my three aunts. I found on record Eliza Tilson, m. Levi Clark, March 30, 1825. Was informed that a little Clark child lived with my grandfather. This was as far as I could trace, so I concluded the mother soon died. I visited the old home place, drank water from the spring that my grandfather drank from more than seventy-five years ago. In May, 1897, on my way from New Orleans, La., to Massachusetts, I again visited Marietta, and succeeded in finding Mrs. Martha A. Clark, the child referred to above, from whom I got some history of the aunts that we had not known about for eighty years.

2898 Myron Winslow Tilson, b. Jan. 17, 1839, in Pembroke, Mass.
2899 John Parker Tilson, b. June 29, 1840, in Kingston, Mass.
2900 Mercy Turner Tilson, b. Aug. 24, 1842, in Kingston, Mass.
2901 Almira Turner Tilson, b. Feb. 26, 1846, in Pembroke, Mass.

At the age of eight years Elisha W. Tilson was bound to Seth Briggs of Halifax, Mass., and worked on the farm. (The house stood one-fourth of a mile south of Halifax R. R. station, on the west side of the road.) He was compelled to work hard, and sometimes did not have sufficient food. He often said that he never went to school but thirteen weeks. At the age of sixteen he was apprenticed to the blacksmith trade at William Ford's, in Pembroke, Mass. (In 1897 the place was owned by Frances T. Crafts.) About 1825 he went to Halifax and engaged in blacksmithing. (The shop stood one-fourth of a mile west of the church, on the same side of the road.) About 1828 he went to Chelmsford, Mass.; remained there until 1834, when he removed to (Bryantville) Pembroke, and worked at his trade for Martin Bryant in a new shop. In the winter of 1838 he worked for Joshua Sturtevant (near Conant's Corner), East Bridgewater, Mass. The same year he moved his family one mile east to Bryantville and built a blacksmith shop. In 1839 he worked for Cobb & Cushing at Hanson, Mass. Dec., 1839, he moved his family to a new house at Kingston, near the Pembroke line, and worked as blacksmith and machinist at the Anchor Works of James Holmes, who failed in that business, 1842. In Oct., 1842, the family moved to Hanover, Mass. He was employed in the Anchor Works of George Curtis until the spring of 1845, when he moved to Pembroke, near the place where he had learned his trade. He worked at blacksmithing until 1850, when he engaged in shoe making, and with his children, made a prosperous occupation. In 1851 he built a house nearly one mile east of Bryantville, next to the place where he lived in 1838. About 1860 he gave up shoe work and began blacksmithing and making shoe tools. He was one of the first inventors of the edge plane in making shoes, and had a large sale a number of years. He was a very ingenious person and skilled in the art of tempering and working metals. In politics he was an old line Whig; afterwards became a Republican. He was a man of physical endurance, seldom sick; was kind to his family and worked hard to support it. Left without father or mother to guide, he has done well his work in this life. He died at his home in Pembroke, June 11, 1888, respected by all who knew him.

Mercer V. Tilson[8], (Elisha W.[7], Joseph[6], John[5], Stephen[4], Edmund[3], Ephraim[2], Edmond[1]) son of Elisha W. and Almira K. (Turner) Tilson.

Not many miles from the bay that kissed the prow of the "Mayflower" as she approached a sterile shore, was the home of my childhood. Many years have passed since those sunny days, and often while in distant lands would memory recall the gladsome springtime of youth, which cheered me on my way through the march of life. I was born Oct. 19, 1837, in the house now occupied by Herman Beal at Bryantville, in Pembroke, Mass. My parents soon moved one mile east on the Duxbury road. In 1840 they moved to a house which my father built in N. W. part of Kingston, Mass. My earliest recollections began here, of the forge, the old saw mill, school house and playmates. Passing on the electric cars by the old home, mill and school house, I am reminded of many incidents of seventy years ago. In 1843 my parents moved to Hanover, Mass., near the Curtis forge.

The children attended school at "Broad Oak." At that time ship building was carried on near the North River bridge. I well remember of going at noon hour and getting the pitch from the vessels to chew. While attending this school my brother Myron and myself were playing in the woods nearby with matches, and shortly after returning to school we were much frightened by an alarm of fire and people rushing to it from all directions, while my brother and I ran for home. In 1845 the family moved to Pembroke, near Silver Lake. At the age of 14 I was put out to work at shoe making in Duxbury and Kingston. In 1854 I was apprenticed to the iron molding trade at North Chelmsford, Mass. After learning the trade worked at various places, either in a foundry or operating sewing machines in shoe business, until the breaking out of the Civil War. On Monday, April 15, 1861, President Lincoln called for troops. Being a member of the State Militia, Co. E, 4th Regt., I was summoned at 9 o'clock that night to appear at the armory at 7 a. m., April 16th. We were escorted by the citizens of So. Abington to the R. R. station, and was the first Co. to report for duty on Boston Common, and soon ordered to Faneuil Hall, awaiting orders. The weather was cold and a heavy rainfall all day, making conditions very uncomfortable. We remained in Faneuil Hall that night. On the 17th received orders to proceed to Fortress Monroe, Va., and marched to the basement of the State House, where each man threw aside his old musket and received a new Springfield rifle as he passed on and formed in line on Beacon street. From the lawn in front of the State House Gov. John A. Andrews made the following address to the 4th M. V. M. Reg. on its departure: "It gives me unspeakable pleasure to witness this array from the good old colony. You have come from the sounding sea, where lies the ashes of Pilgrims, and you are bound on a high and noble pilgrimage for liberty, for the union and constitution of your country. Soldiers of the old Bay State, sons of sires who never disgraced their flag in civil life or on the tented field, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this noble response to the call of your State and your country. You cannot wait for words. I bid you Godspeed and an affectionate farewell." The Reg. then took the train for Fall River, going on board the steamer State of Maine, stopping at New York until the gale subsided. On morning of 19th proceeded and arrived off Fortress Monroe at midnight, the 20th, landing soon after sunrise. We were mustered into service on April 22d. My first military duty was on guard 23d and 24th. We were busy doing police work, mounting artillery and guard duty in vicinity of Hampton. On 22d May Genl. B. F. Butler arrived and took command. On the 24th he went to Hampton, returning with a number of negroes, old and young, to which he gave the famous term "contraband." On the 27th May the Mass. 4th, Vt. 1st and N. Y. 7th were ordered to Newport News, Va. The 29th began on earthworks, bringing large trees on our shoulders from the forest, one-third mile. Works finished June 1st. Sunday, June 9th, I was on guard outside the works over the artillery, which was taken about 1 a. m. the 10th to Big Bethel, with detachments of the 1st Vt., N. Y. 7th and Cos. G, F, H, K and M of 4th Mass., but proved a Union defeat through mistake at the cross roads about daylight, by firing on our troops coming from Hampton. Nothing more of importance except scouting and some prisoners captured until July 2d; the Reg. was ordered to Hampton by boat, doing guard duty and scouting, until it left on 17th by steamer S. R. Spaulding for Mass., arriving at Long Island, Boston, at night, the 19th. On the 23d the Reg. was discharged. After a short visit to my brother Myron in New Brunswick I returned to East Bridgewater to operate machines on shoes for the army. On March 30, 1864, I enlisted in the Signal Corps, U. S. A., at 15 School street, Boston, Mass. April 5th, 84 of us left Boston by Providence and New York for Signal Camp of Instruction at Georgetown, D. C. On June 7th 54 men, including myself, left camp for Ft. Leavenworth, Ks., by B. & O. R. R., to St. Louis, Mo., thence by boat, arriving June 21st, at midnight. At this fort my uncle, Winslow Turner, did military duty in 1828, enlisting at Fort Hill, Boston, Mass. He settled in Missouri and was prominent in the Confederacy. Oct. 11, 23 signal men left under command of Gen. S. R. Curtis and attacked Gen. Sterling Price, turning his army, Gen. Pleasanton's Cav. pursuing into the Indian Territory. Gen. Curtis returned to Ft. Leavenworth Nov. 18th. On Feb. 6th Gen. Granville M. Dodge arrived and took command of Dept. of Missouri, and Gen. Curtis assigned to Dept. of Northwest. On Feb. 14th a detachment of signal men left for the Powder River expedition, and on June 29th six signal men, including myself, left by boat for Omaha, Neb., and reached the rear of Col. Cole's command at noon, July 9th, fifty miles west of Lincoln, Neb. There were three Divisions, Eastern, Middle and Western, Gen. P. E. Connor in command of all. Cole's command comprised the 2d and 12th Mo. Regts. and a company of Pawnee Indians under Capt. North. There were 150 wagons, nearly all six-mule teams. Our march through that country was tedious, varying from 10 to 25 miles per day, and often without wood, water or grass. Our course was north and west, crossing many tributaries of the Missouri to Powder River (which passes into the Yellowstone), thence up Powder River to Ft. Connor, where we arrived Sept. 24th. During the ninety days we had marched many hundred miles through a rugged and desolate country. Many of us had lost our horses for want of forage to keep them alive, and were compelled to walk, some without shoes to protect their feet from the cactus and wild sage. Our sixty days' rations were nearly gone, and we had but little to eat for sixteen days, some eating the flesh of horses and mules. Sometimes men and horses were nearly exhausted for want of water. Gen. Connor realizing our condition, sent a company to find us, returning to their camp at once, and very soon rations were sent to us. We had lost some horses and mules by stampede and hundreds by starvation. Up to this time our division had no attacks from the Indians. On Sept. 1st, 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th we had engagements with the Sioux, Cheyenes and Arappahoes, several of our men being killed and wounded. Gen. Connor's division had been successful in killing, taking prisoners and capturing their stock. After a short rest, on the 26th, Cols. Cole and Walker began their march for Ft. Leavenworth. I was detailed to take charge of C. M. Latham of our signal corps, who had been wounded, and next morning with ambulance began our journey to Ft. Larimie, 200 miles over a rough and rocky way, and arrived June 3d, joining Cole's command, to Omaha, taking a steamer and arriving at Ft. Leavenworth Nov. 6th. On the 9th Dec. we were discharged from the U. S. Army. After visiting friends in Kansas, returned to my home in Massachusetts in Jan., 1866. Since then I have led a somewhat adventurous life, going many thousand miles into many countries.

Myron W. Tilson[8], (Elisha W.[7], Joseph[6], John[5], Stephen[4], Edmund[3], Ephraim[2], Edmond[1]) b. Jan. 17, 1839, son of Elisha W. and Almira K. (Turner) Tilson. When about fifteen years of age he began a seafaring life. He was in the brig August of Kingston, Mass., July 1st, 1856, when she was lost on the coast of Labrador. Returning home, he went to the West Indies and other ports. For some time he located in the eastern part of New Brunswick. Soon after the Civil War began he prepared himself for the navy, and was appointed acting ensign in 1862 and ordered to the schr. T. A. Ward of the Potomac Flotilla. The Ward was ordered to Admiral Dahlgreen's fleet, off Charleston, S. C., and arrived on 3d Oct., 1863. On the 20th Act. Ensign Tilson and nine men were captured on Magnolia Beach by the 21st Georgia Cav. and marched to Georgetown, S. C., then to Charleston and to Richland Co. Jail, Columbia, where he was held a prisoner until Oct. 16, 1864. In a few weeks he was ordered to the gunboat Lenapee and took part in the capture of Ft. Fisher, where Lieuts. Preston and Porter were killed, who were fellow prisoners with Actg. Ensign Tilson at Columbia, S. C. He was honorably dis. from the U. S. Navy, Dec. 10, 1865, and soon entered the merchant service as captain of the brig Ballot Box, steamship Alliance and other vessels. His exposure as prisoner of war brought on heart trouble, which compelled him to retire from sea service. He then engaged in the ice business at Houston, Texas, but failing in health, had to give up business and go to Galveston, where he died Sept. 22, 1870. Unm. He is buried in the Masonic Cem. at Galveston, on the north side next to the brick wall. The following is an extract from his letter about six weeks before his death:

Houston, Texas, Aug. 4, 1870.

I have been examined by four of the best doctors in Texas and all pronounce me troubled with heart disease, and I was satisfied that was the trouble before I was examined. That is the cause of the several falls I have had the past twelve months. The first in Boston, second in Galveston and third in Houston. I am satisfied I contracted the affection of the heart while a prisoner of war. On a march from Georgetown to Charleston, S. C., a distance of ninety miles, without food or sleep, and water not fit to drink. I was sick about four weeks after we arrived in Charleston. It was very hot and oppressive at the time, and my breath began to fail from that time and never before, but I am not going to kill myself by worrying.

MYRON W. TILSON.

Capture of a boat's crew of the T. A. Ward. Report of Rear Admiral Dalgreen.

Flag Steamer Philadelphia, off Morris Island, Nov. 6, 1863.

Sir: The schooner T. A. Ward arrived here on the 3d instant from Morrell's Inlet, where she was stationed, with the intelligence that on the 17th ultimo a schooner was discovered lying about half a mile up the inlet. Acting Ensign Tilson of the Ward, with two boats, immediately proceeded to board her, which he succeeded in doing without any resistance, there being but one man on board. She proved to be the schooner Rover, a vessel of about fifty tons, and formerly a Charleston pilot-boat.

Upon examination she proved to be loaded with a full cargo of cotton. Joseph Stewart, the person captured on board of her, states that she had been lying there for several weeks, waiting a crew to run the blockade to some English port. Finding the schooner hard and fast aground and impossible to get her off, Mr. Tilson set fire and destroyed her. No papers or documents of any kind were found on board.

On the 20th of October a party of nineteen men under Acting Ensign Tilson was dispatched for a short distance from the Ward in quest of water. Leaving the boats in charge of Acting Master's Mate Elwell with seven men, Acting Ensign Tilson with ten men landed. They had proceeded about half a mile from the boats when they were surprised and attacked by a large body of Rebel Cavalry, who made them prisoners. The boats were also attacked, but were successfully defended by Acting Master's Mate Elwell and the seven men who remained. The commander of the Ward speaks highly of their conduct. I have the honor to be very respectfully your obedient servant,

JNO. A. DALHGREEN, Rear Admiral, commanding.

Report of Acting Ensign Myron W. Tilson.

South Hanson, Massachusetts, Nov. 5, 1864.

Sir: I have the honor to report that on the 20th of October, 1863, I left the United States Schooner T. A. Ward, then lying off Morrell's Inlet, South Carolina, in command of a howitzer boat with a crew of eleven men, under orders from Acting Master William L. Babcock, commanding the T. A. Ward, to go in and lie off the beach, within easy range, and shell the enemy's cavalry if they attempted to retreat down the beach while the schooner shelled the building to the northward, occupied by them as quarters. On being joined by another boat with six men, in charge of Acting Master's Mate A. Elwell, and on a given signal from the ship, I landed in further obedience to my orders, to ascertain if a schooner then lying up the inlet about one and a half miles from its mouth (and which I afterwards found to be the schooner Cecilia of Nassau, N. P.), could be cut out or destroyed. Also to examine the locality with a view to obtaining water. Leaving the boats in charge of Acting Master's Mate A. Elwell, I proceeded up the beach with ten men. On approaching the schooner we were surprised by a considerable detachment of the enemy, consisting of Companies A and C, 21st Georgia Cavalry, and after a brief and ineffective resistance were compelled to surrender to a greatly superior force. After the skirmish I found James Lacy (ordinary seaman) missing. Have reason to believe he was killed in the skirmish on the beach. An unsuccessful attempt was also made by the enemy to capture the boats. I have no knowledge of any damage sustained by them. After our capture we were forwarded viz. Georgetown, S. C., and Charleston to Richland Jail, Columbia, S. C.

I am very respectfully your obedient servant,

MYRON W. TILSON, Acting Ensign, U. S. Navy.

Hon. GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of the Navy.

Sir: Many of our seamen and marines have died since their removal from Richmond to Andersonville, Georgia. I have been informed by reliable persons of that prison that the cause of such mortality was starvation and its effects.

The following is a list of men captured with me and died during their severe imprisonment at Andersonville, Georgia:

William Raymond (cockswain), died July 27, 1864.

James Doulphince (seaman), died August 21, 1864.

Augustus Kultz (ordinary seaman), died March 29, 1864.

John Regan (ordinary seaman), died June 18, 1864.

Michael Tearney (landsman), died June 30, 1864.

Thomas J. Reynolds (ordinary seaman), missing; when last heard from was held a hostage at Salisbury, North Carolina.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

MYRON W. TILSON, Acting Ensign, U. S. Navy.

Hon. GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of the Navy.

1721-2. At a town meeting of Plympton, Ephraim Tilson and James Sturtevant were chosen tithing men.

For greater convenience of the support of the Gospel in the south part of Plympton (now Carver), wherein the new church was gathered, Legislative action was asked for incorporating a precinct, that they be vested with all powers, privileges and immunities that other precincts within this Province do or by law ought to enjoy.

Sent down for concurence, Nov. 15, 1732.

Read and concurred with amendments, viz:

Provided, That Edmund Tilson and the other petitioners with him, viz., Elisha Weston, Eleazor Cushman, Eleazor Rickard and Ephraim Tilson, be and remain in the old precinct, according to their petition, till the further order of this court, and also that the ministerial lands belonging to said old precinct shall still solely remain to them, and the new precinct to have none of the issues or profits thereof. Sent up for concurrence.

Rev. Othniel Campbell became pastor of the new church in 1734 and remained until 1743. From 1746 to 17— he was pastor at Tiverton, R. I. R. I. Records.

Luther Tilson at the age of twenty went on the ocean as a sailor for six years. He then went to Vermont and worked on a farm for his uncle, Daniel Perry. In the fall of 1802, he with his uncle and two other families, migrated with wagons to Ohio. At Wheeling, Va., with more families, they took a flat boat, tied their wagons to the sides, and the three young men manned the boat. The old uncle took the horses by land. The boat arrived at Cincinnati, O., Dec. 25, 1802. In 1803 Mr. Perry bought the section of land that now includes the town of Sommerville, Butler Co., O.; then all in woods. There they endured great hardships. Daniel Perry sold to Luther Tilson, 160 acres of land at Congress price, and have all the time he wished to pay for it without interest. It was the south part of the section, being one mile East and West; eighty rods North and South. He worked away from home to support his family, clearing his land by moonlight, Sometimes he would go thirty miles on foot, work a day, for one bushel of corn, and carry it on his back home for his family. Mr. Tilson sold 60 acres of the West end of his land to enable him to own a horse. Thirteen years had passed before he was able to pay one dollar on his land. In 1816 he paid a part. He finally sold the other hundred acres for two thousand dollars cash; paid his uncle; bought a wagon and four horses; moved to Darke Co., O., and bought three half fractional sections of land, or in all about 720 acres. In 1817 he moved his family to this land in the woods among the Indians and wolves. There they were again without the comforts of life. Mrs. Tilson became insane, and never fully recovered from it. Early frost had killed the corn, and all the bread stuff was brought from Butler Co., but there were deer meat and wild turkey in abundance. In 1818 corn did well, and they soon had plenty, and in 1823 Mr. Tilson built a brick house. Mrs. Tilson d. Mar. 18, 1826, Luther Tilson d. July 27, 1827; both are buried in the Friend's cemetery, Wayne Co., Ind., one-fourth mile west of school house, No. 8. Mr. Tilson gave 80 acres of land to each of his sons as they became of age.

The four families from Vermont were Daniel Perry; his two sons-in-law, John Emerson and Joseph Blessom and Luther Tilson.

APPENDIX.

Know all men by these presents that wee Samuel Tilson & Stephen Tilson, both of the Town of Plimpton, in the County of Plimouth, in New England, both joint partners in the lands and meadows given unto us by our honoured father, Edmond Tilson of Plimpton, afores'd, that is to say his homestead land on which he now dwells, and also his meadow lying in the meadows called Mahutchet meadows, and also his meadow at the south meadow, so called, below the furnace; and also part of that lot of meadow which our s'd father formerly bought of Ichabod Bartlett, which part of said lot of meadow lyeth on the northwest side of the brook, called Mahutchet Brook, which said lands and meadows are lying and being in the township of Plimpton, aforesaid, wherefore wee have now by mutuale agreement divided said land and meadows between us as followeth: Namely, we do mutually agree that the said Stephen Tilson shall have a certain parcel of said homestead land and meadow that is to say all that part, thereof, which lyeth there adjoining together, both upland and meadow, on the westerly side of the highway, as said way is now traveled, excepting a small parcel thereof which is hereafter in this agreement set forth by meats and bounds unto the aforesaid Samuel Tilson; and also the said Stephen Tilson to have one other parcel of said homestead, being the easterly part thereof, which is bounded as followeth: Beginning at the red oak tree marked, which is the northwest corner bound of John Tilson's, and from thence ranging north twenty-one degrees and a half; westerly thirty-one poles, and a half to a stake standing on a hummock by a stump in a swamp, and from thence ranging north fifty-three degrees and a half; easterly thirty-four poles and a half to a stake with stones about it, standing on the northerly side of a cartway, and from thence on the same course about three poles and a half near to Isaac Nye's land, and so to include all that part of said homestead which lyeth there adjoining together on the easterly side of said ranges, which said two parcels of s'd homestead as above described, we do mutually agree shall belong unto the said Stephen Tilson and his heirs and assignes forever. And we do mutually agree that the said Stephen Tilson shall have all the aforesaid part of that lot of meadow which our aforesaid father formerly bought of Ichabod Bartlett, which part of said lot lyeth on the northwest side of the afores'd brook called Mahutchet Brook, and we do mutually agree that the said Samuel Tilson shall have a small parcel of land and orchard being part of the aforesaid homestead which lyeth on the westerly side of the highway, (being that which is about excepted out of what was set of to Stephen Tilson), and is bounded as followeth: Beginning at a stake and stones standing about two poles to the northeast of Thomas Faunce's fence, and by the northwest side of the highway near a slow of water, and from thence ranging north twenty degrees and a half westerly sixteen poles and a quarter to a stone set in the ground, and other stones about it on the north side of the orchard, and from thence ranging north seventy-three degrees easterly nine poles and three quarters to a stake and stones by the west side of the highway by the fence, and from thence bounded by said highway, as it is now traveled until it comes to the stake and stones first mentioned; and also one other parcel of said homestead lying on the easterly side of said highway, and is bounded as followeth: On the westerly side thereof it is bounded by said highway as the way is now traveled, and on the southerly end thereof it is bounded by the land of Thomas Faunce and John Tilson; and on the easterly side thereof it is bounded by the land of said John Tilson until it comes to the northwest corner bound of said John Tilson's, being a red oak tree marked, and from thence ranging north twenty-one degrees and a half westerly thirty-one poles and a half by that part of s'd homestead set of to Stephen Tilson to a stake standing on a hummock by a stump in a swamp; and from thence ranging north fifty-three degrees and a half easterly by s'd Stephen Tilson's range thirty-four poles and a half to a stake with stones about it standing on the northerly side of a cartway, and from thence on the same course about three poles and a half more to Isaac Nye's land, and from thence the northerly side thereof is bounded by said Nye's land until it comes to the stake and stones near the northeast corner of our dwelling house, and from thence to said northeast corner of said house; and from thence bounded by the easterly end and southerly side of said dwelling house, and so to the afores'd highway only excepting that the aforesaid Stephen Tilson shall have the liberty of a way through gates or bars where it may be most beneficial and least prejudical from the aforesaid highway unto his land, as also liberty to lay firewood near the southerly side of said dwelling house; and to pass to and from the southerly door of said house unto the highway as he may have occasion; and also the said Samuel Tilson to have all our aforesaid meadow lying in the meadows called Mehutchet meadows, and also all our aforesaid meadow lying at the south meadows, so called, below the furnace, which afores'd parcel of land and meadow shall belong unto the said Samuel Tilson and his Assignes forever. Now the aforesaid Devision this made, we do mutually agree shall stand and remain as a full settlement of the same between us and our heirs and assignes forever. In witness whereof wee the aforesaid Samuel Tilson and Stephen Tilson have hereunto set our hands and seals this twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred fifty and three.

Signed and sealed in the presence of us:

SAMUEL BENSON,

EPHRAIM SPOONER.

Plymouth Colony embraced the territory now included in the three counties of Plymouth, Barnstable and Bristol, formed in 1685. The union of the Plymouth colony, with the Massachusetts colony in 1692, terminated its independent existence, which had continued for 71 years. For the first ten years of its settlement the colonists were confined almost wholly to the town of Plymouth, and at the end of that period numbered only three hundred. Ten years later there were eight towns in the colony, of which four were within the limits of the present county. It is not known just when Plymouth became a town, but it delegated to persons to act in their behalf in the enactment of laws in 1638, and on the 18th Feb., 1649-50, Plymouth voted to choose seven men to order the affairs and dispose of lands to persons, etc. Scituate was incorporated in 1636. Duxbury in 1637, and included within its limits Pembroke, (incorp. 1711); the greater part of Marshfield (incorp. 1640); part of Kingston, (incorp. 1725), and a part of Bridgewater, (incorp. 1656). (Duxbury is said to be named in honor of Miles Standish, the Duxbury or military leader of the colony, who settled in that place); and Middleborough, (incorp. 1669). Plymouth county was incorporated in 1685, and borders on the ocean. It has 30 miles of sea coast. The county consisted of the above mentioned towns, with Accord Pond shares, and Fords Farm Plantations, embracing parts of Scituate and Hanover, and the whole of (old) Abington.

The northwest boundary of the county is nearly the original line between the colony of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay, the only difference arising from the annexation to Plymouth Co. of Hingham and Hull, which occurred at the formation of Norfolk Co., in 1793. The population just previous to this accession was by estimate slightly over 4,000, many having gone to multiply settlements outside the county. The prosperity of the colony had been greatly impaired by the war with King Phillip, the loss of men and money being a heavy strain upon their limited resources, so that many promising enterprises were broken up and many fair fields abandoned. Middleborough, Scituate, Bridgewater and Plymouth itself were invaded by the savage enemy. In the later French and Indian wars though unharmed in their homes, they joined heartily in maintaining the honor and integrity of the English nation. The town of Pembroke was the first in the colonies to rebel against the British Crown, having in 1740 adopted a resolution to adhere to their rights and privileges "any royal instructions of his majesty to the contrary notwithstanding." In May, 1776, Plympton voted unanimously in favor of independence thus preceding the National Congress in their proclamation of liberty to the world. The town of Plympton, incorporated in 1707, was originally included within the limits of Plymouth. The history of its territory therefore is as ancient as that of Plymouth. The rich meadow land and heavily wooded swamps with which this territory abounded early, attracted the first settlers, who sought grants from the colony courts of farms contiguous to their dwellings in Plymouth. As early as 1640 records show that grants began to be made, and the meadows of Colebrook, Lakenham and Colchester, as they were called, were divided among the settlers according to their respective application and wants.

The following was copied from Plympton Records:

The first grist mill in Plympton was built about 1702 by Mr. Adam Wright. It stood within what was afterwards the forge pond of Joseph Mallinson, now Lt. Oliver Parker's. The wheel turned in a horizontal course, and the shaft stood upright with the mill spindle in the upper end of it, so that the mill stone turned with the wheel. It was called a gig mill, and it is said it would grind four or five bushels a day. It served for the first settlers of Plympton. But after they began to increase, the said Mr. Wright quitted that and built another on a different place just above the bridge over the Plympton cotton factory pond, and on the north side of it.

Halifax taken from the north part of Plympton, northeast part of Middleborough, and south part of Pembroke, built a church, and was incorporated a town in 1734, and supposed to be named in honor of the Earl of Halifax, Eng. Its early history is nearly as ancient as that of Plymouth of events in the early days of the colony. Carver was a part of Plympton, incorporated a town in 1790. Colebrook and Lakenham are within its limits, and the territory of the town is identified with the very earliest history of Plymouth, and was formerly a part of it.

The following was taken from a Kansas paper, 1888:

A strange craft was that which came down the Missouri river the other day and tied up a short distance below Harlem, near Kansas City. It consisted of a primitive log raft, upon which was piled a chaotic mass of poor furniture, bed clothing and half broken Queen's ware. The craft was about 20 feet long and not half that wide, and upon it a man, his wife and five children have floated down the Missouri all the way from northern Nebraska. The man's name is Jule Tilson, and his destination is Arkansas, whence he emigrated a year ago to what is known as the Niobrara country, an unsettled region in northern Nebraska. He squatted on a claim, but was forced off when the legitimate settlers came along. This left Tilson without means, and gathering his few effects together, he put his family on the little craft, which he christened the "Arkansaw Traveler," and started on his long voyage. The family has been on the water over six weeks, and the trip has been without incident, except the death of one of the little ones. The child was about six years old, and prone to somnambulism. At a point near Sioux City, the child was found missing when the family awoke one morning, having walked into the river during the night.

By Rev. J. H. Vinton:

Respecting the traditions of men, and adhering closely and resolutely to the teachings of inspired Scripture, a congregation of faithful men was formed for the worship of God and the enjoyment of his ordinances at the village of Scrooby in Nottinghamshire, England, in the year 1606, of the church. John Robinson was the teacher, while Richard Clifton, a somewhat older man, was the pastor. Harrassed by persecution, they resolved to quit their native soil and take refuge in Holland, a purpose which they accomplished in 1608. After sojourning in Amsterdam a few months, they removed to Leyden, where they remained about eleven years, and finally resolved to remove beyond the Atlantic, which plan was finally carried into execution in the latter part of 1620. On Monday, the eleventh day of Dec. of that year, reckoning according to the old style, corresponding to the twenty-first of that month, an exploring party of ten men from the Mayflower, landed at Plymouth; the party consisted of John Carver, Wm. Bradford, and other leading individuals.

The popular apprehension that the whole company of the Mayflower landed on the 11th [21st] December, is founded in error. The pictorial representation of women and children on shore, and of the vessel as at anchor in Plymouth harbor on that day, has no just foundation, only ten men—not one woman—landed from the shallop at that time. The Mayflower was then at her anchorage in Provincetown harbor, where she had been since Nov. 11, till the Saturday following Dec. 16, when she was brought to Plymouth. The landing of the entire company then commenced, was not completed till March, 1621.

The appellation of Pilgrims is now restricted to the arrival of four vessels: The Mayflower of 180 tons burden, Dec. 21, 1620; The Fortune of 55 tons, Nov. 9, 1621; The Ann, 140 tons, and the Little James of 44 tons, the last of July or beginning of August, 1623.

"Coats-of-arms" may be divided into the three classes: First, those belonging to any man's ancestors, and used by them for a long time. This is the most important class. The second class embraces such arms as have been granted by the Herald's College by Royal command, as a reward for distinguished services to the state. The third class consists of the coats-of-arms granted by the Herald College on payment of certain fees. It is a fair assertion to make, that coats-of-arms used prior to 1625, were generally the rightful property of the users. If we find any person using a seal with a shield thereon engraved, in New England during the score of years following the first colonization of Plymouth and Massachusetts, we may fairly conclude his social position in England was among the gentry or yeomanry.

Sirnames and signification:

Mr. Lower, who does not quote any authority for the statement, alleges that there was an old provincial nickname for William, viz: Till whence Tilson. It is also thought to be a curtailment of Matilda, a familiar female name dating back to 1414.

C. W. Beardsley, London.

Two favorite girls' names in Yorkshire previous to the Reformation were Matilda and Emma. Two of the commonest surnames there today are Emmott and Tillot, with such variations as Emmett and Tillett, Emmotson and Tillotson. Tylott, Thompson occurs under date of 1414 in the "Fabric Rolls of Yorkminster" (Surtees Society).

Boston, Eng., gets its name out of the twilight of history. Before the Romans built sea walls to keep out the tide on the one hand, and cut the Car Dyke to catch the drainage of the Kesteven and Lindsey highlands on the other hand the fens were wild morasses almost entirely under water in the winter. The whole of the district round Boston was probably a marsh, only inhabited here and there in its higher parts. At that time the tides forced their way up the line of the Witham to Dogdike and beyond these lay a large lake nearly up to Lincoln, which was then to some extent a seaport. Where Boston now stands was a lonely and desolate place. That was why Botolph came here to found a monastry. He asked the King for a spot which had belonged to no man before, "an untilled place where no man had dwelt," and the site of Boston was given to him, "a region as forsaken by man as it was possessed by demons." There he lived for a quarter of a century, raising his monastry by the side of the river at a place where it could be forded at low water, and here he died in 680. For many centuries after the cluster of houses which had sprung up around Botolph's monastry was called St. Botolph's town, but by the sixteenth century the name had been compressed into Boston. The next glimpse of the place we get is two hundred years later, when after the men of Holland, Croyland, Deeping, Langtoft, Baston, Bourn and Stamford had vainly tried to beat back an incursion of the Danes (though they killed three of their kings), at Threekingham, the monastry at Boston was burned, the abbeys at Croyland, Thorney and Peterborough sharing the same fate. Another two hundred years passed and we find that Botolph Town was still only a small place, for it was lumped with Skirbeck in the Doomsday Book. In the three or four centuries following the Conquest, however, it made an enormous advance and reached a comparative greatness such as it is never likely to again attain. The river Witham had by this time become properly banked and was the highway of commerce for a very wide tract of country.

Lincoln was one of the largest towns in the Kingdom and Boston was its port. Between the two lay a dozen great religious houses, such as Barlings, Bardney, Kirkstead, Tattershall, Kyme and Nocton, while at Boston itself each of the principal religious orders established a friary. Powerful barons, too, settled in the neighborhood and their influence with that of the religious brotherhoods, gave the sense of security, without which commerce languishes. By the beginning of the thirteenth century the town was a flourishing port and had friars that were visited by buyers from distant parts of England, and sellers from what we know now as France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. It had too its own woolen manufacturers and was granted a large measure of home rule on compounding with the King by payment of a yearly subsidy. In 1205 its yield to the Royal Exchecquer for customs dues was second only to that of London, the amounts being London £836, Boston £780. From about 1200 to about 1450 were the "high and palmy" days of the place. The great merchant houses of Flanders and Germany had branches here, and it was unquestionably one of the chief places where England came into touch with the continent. In its time of prosperity Boston was piously minded. The noble church, which while it stands will ever redeem the town from being commonplace, was begun in 1309. There is mention of a church (probably on the same spot), as early as 1090. The present building has been a slow growth. Generations passed away between the time of laying the first stone to its completion. Trading guilds began to be established. The Guild of St. Mary, the highest in commercial importance, was set on foot in 1260. Their hall remains to this day as the Town Hall in South street. The Corpus Christi Guild, founded in 1335, was commercial at first, but finally became religious. In 1500 a bridge was built. The builder was one May Hake, a Flanders mason, who by agreement was to have "with his man, 4s per diem." One of the items of agreement was "that May Hake be contented of his wages." That bridge was removed after the opening of the present iron bridge, built in 1807.

The seventeenth century was a very notable one for Boston, and by it the town will chiefly be remembered, for it then sent forth the "Pilgrim Fathers," who founded the United States of America. In 1608 a number of Puritans, who with their pastor, the Rev. J. Robinson, had been driven from Boston into Holland through religious persecution, resolved to seek in the New World "freedom to worship God." In 1620 they carried out their project and crossed the Atlantic in the Mayflower, a 120-ton ship. Thirteen years later the Rev. John Cotton, Vicar of Boston, followed his fellow townsmen to the New World and became minister of the first Christian church in Boston, Massachusetts. No wonder that Americans make a point of visiting Lincolnshire Boston, and have restored a chapel in the old church in memory of the Rev. John Cotton. It was the sturdy Puritanism of Boston that gave birth to America. Noncomformity has been strong in Boston from the moment when conformity was demanded until now. One of the Baptist churches at present in a flourishing condition has existed since the time of the Commonwealth. One need not be surprised that the town from which sprang Puritan New England was in the days of the great Civil War one of the strongholds of the Parliamentarian party. The members at that time were Sir Anthony Irby of Boston and Mr. William Ellis of Grantham. Both were ardent Roundheads. Strong opposition to King Charles I caused him to declare it to be "unlawful for any one to aid and assist that town," and threatened to send force against the place. To which the mayor and aldermen replied sarcastically, that they "were not afraid of any forces coming to their town. From the beginning to the end of the war Boston remained faithful to the popular cause, and was used as a base of operations by Cromwell. The leader of the Ironsides slept in the town the night before the battle of Winceby (near Horncastle). In the battle he led the van and was twice unhorsed. Six months earlier Charles I declared forfeited the estates of almost the whole of South Lincolnshire gentry, who nearly all sided with the Parliament and rode to the field with Cromwell. After the Restoration the whole of the corporation was bundled out and a subservient lot put into office, who sent adulatory addresses up to Charles II, but in 1688 under William III, the "old gang" of Puritans was reinstated. Since then the town had very little history until the present generation. After standing for several hundreds of years with a population of 3,000 to 4,000, it commenced to grow as the fens were drained, and the surrounding district became important for agriculture. At the beginning of the present century the population was 600. Now it is over 20,000. In recent years some of the ancient spirit of the people appears to have cropped out afresh and public works have been undertaken with energy that deserves reward. What is now the "Red Lion" Hotel was built and owned by the Guild of St. Mary in 1515. Boston has been the birthplace and home of many notable persons. John Fox, the writer of the "Book of Martyrs," first saw the light in 1517 in it is said, the house which now is known as the "Rum Puncheon." It has been through books and newspapers chiefly that Boston has touched the world outside, and from time attracted attention as a producing corner of the land. Reference has been made of Rev. J. Robinson and Rev. John Cotton, whose name links the town so closely with the younger and greater Boston in America.

There are mentioned in the Corporation and Guild Records (of what is now "Red Lion" Hotel, in Strait Bargate), as belonging to the Guild of St. Mary, 1515, the rent paid to the Guild being £3 6s 8d a year. In 1586 and 1590 it was specially licensed to sell beer brewed out of the borough. Later it belonged to the Sibsey family.

Vol. XXXVI, 1882. Resistance by William Coddington and others in Lincolnshire, Eng., to the Royal Loan, 1626-27.

In a letter by William Coddington, Governor of Rhode Island, to Gov. Leverett of Massachusetts, in the year 1674, we find narrated some particulars of his life. Speaking of his early days in 1627 in Boston, Lincolnshire, Eng., he says: "We persecuted not but stood together for the public good. I was one of those many Lincolnshire gentlemen that denied the Royal Loan and suffered for it in King Charles the First's days."

This circumstance occurred ten years before the celebrated Treason of Hampden.

Rev. John Cotton, Vicar of Boston, Richards Ballingham, Records, and William Coddington, a member of the Corporation of the town to Boston County Lincolnshire, were fined for nonconformity.

WATERMAN, BARTLETT AND MURDOCK

Ancestors of Elisha Waterman Tilson.

WATERMAN.

This name was derived from the occupation of the first Thomas who held a commission in the navy and was denominated or called Thomas the "Waterman." Robert[1] was son or grandson of Thomas. He was in Salem, N. E., in 1636; perhaps born 1615. Was soon in Plymouth, N. E., and married 1638, Elizabeth Bourne, dau. of Thomas Bourne, and was afterwards of Marshfield. His brother, Thomas, was in Hingham, N. E., 1679, who had a son Robert, born 1680. See Hobart's Journal.

Children of Robert[1] and Elizabeth (Bourne) Waterman:

Joseph Waterman, b. 1639.
John Waterman, b. 1642.
Thomas Waterman, b. 1644.
Robert Waterman, b. 1652.

Inventory of estate of Robert Waterman of Marshfield, taken Jan. 13, 1652-3, on oath of Elizabeth Waterman of Marshfield by Anthony Eames, Edmond Hicksman, Mark Evans and Anthony Snow. Amount £78.

Letters of Administration granted to Elizabeth Waterman, March 1, 1652-3. Ply. Col. Rec., Vol. III, IV, 1651-68.

Savage says: Robert Waterman died Sept., 1652. He also says: John Waterman, a passenger in the Jonathan, arrived at Boston, 1639, of which I know no more, but that his passage was paid by Peter Noyes of Sudburg, and therefore we may suppose him to be a servant.

John Waterman[2], (Robert[1]) son of Robert and Elizabeth (Bourne) Waterman, b. 1642; m. Dec. 7, 1665, Anna Sturtevant, b. June 4, 1647, dau. of Samuel and Anna Sturtevant, who resided on the Cotton farm, so called, a little northward of Plymouth village.

Ply. Probate Records, Vol. 14, page 42. Will of John Murdock, Sr. I give and bequeath to my wife Phebe 1000£ lawful money, to be paid within eighteen months after my decease, or to take her choice of my bonds for the sum immediately after my decease; also one-half of my household goods, and to use two rooms in my now mansion house, but upon these conditions, that she be content and not make any change or demand for dower in my real estate. I give and bequeath to the Scotch Box in the town of Boston 50£, to be paid to Capt. John Ervin for the use of that society within eighteen months. I give to 3d precinct in the town of Plymouth, of which the Rev. Mr. Jacob Bacon is the present minister, 200£ lawful money, to be paid within eighteen months, the same to be paid to the precinct committee, but not to lessen the capital sum, which is always to be kept good, and if not improved according to directions, shall return to my son, John Murdock, his heirs, etc. I give to the poor of the town of Plymouth 100£ lawful money, within eighteen months, but not to lessen the capital sum, which is always to be kept good; if not, shall return to my son, John Murdock, his heirs, etc. I give to the use of the town school in Plymouth 100£, to be paid within eighteen months to Treasurer or Selectmen of said town, but not to lessen the capital sum, which is always to be kept good. If directions are not observed the same sum shall return to my son, John Murdock, his heirs, etc. I give to my daughter, Phebe Bowdoin, the wife of William Bowdoin of Boston, and to her heirs, a debt of about 7000£ old tenor, which her said husband owes me upon book; also 5000£ old tenor due from her husband to me by bond. I also give to said daughter 333£ 6s 8d, which her said husband hath already received by bond from Perez Tilson, which was a debt originally due to me from said Tilson. I give unto my granddaughter, Ruth Wall, the lot of land and dwelling house thereon standing which I bought of Capt. Charles Dyer, dec'd, situated in Plymouth. I give unto my son, John Murdock, all the rest of my estate, after legacies are paid, both real and personal of what nature or quality, the same is whether moneys due to me by book, bond, mortgages or any other way.

I appoint my trusty friends, Edward Winslow and George Watson, Esq., and my son, John Murdock, to be exers. Feb. 7, 1756.

To Mr. John Tilson, Carver, County of Plymouth, Massachusetts.
Point Harrner, Ohio, Dec. 31.

Marietta, December 28th, 1817.

Dear Father and Mother & Friends:

I here sit down to write a few lines to you to inform you that we have got here with much fatigue, and it took a great while, for we took the worst time we could have had for we was all over in mud sometimes, and the road through pensylvana for three hundred miles was such, but we got to pitsburg and stoped there and finally made a boat to go down by water and set off now I found this to be much the easiest and least expense. Then I found we had missed the way, for we might have gone to the head of Allegany river. We might got here with half the time and expense. The boats the family go down the river in are twelve feet wide and about twenty-five and from forty feet in length, and three or four familys will go down the river in them. The current generally sets them fifty miles in a day if the weather is good, but we got here well and found our Brother and his family enjoying the same blessing. They remember there love to you all. I know but little about the country yet but I will state the particulars at some future time, but what I have seen I like very well. The town of Marietta is a handsome settlement and good regulations and clever civil people. I have no more to write and must subscribe

Yours &c,
JOSEPH TILSON.

TURNER, WINSLOW, STURTEVANT, KEITH AND PARRIS.

Ancestors of Almira Keith (Turner) Tilson.

TURNER.

Of Norman-French origin. Was in England as early as 1067, date of the Norman Conquest, when "Le Sire de-Tourneur" accompanied King William in his expedition.

HUMPHREY[1] TURNER, born in England, probably Devonshire, and sailed perhaps from Holland with his family, arriving in Plymouth, N. E., 1628. He was a tanner. A house lot was assigned to him in 1629 in Scituate, and built a house in which he probably lived in 1633. His wife, Lydia Gamer, was born in England and died before 1673, in Scituate, N. E. Humphrey Turner was among the earliest and most efficient in the settlement of Scituate. He represented the town several years as deputy to the General Court. Was a commissioner, constable, etc. He was possessed of that judgment, discretion, energy and perseverance of character, which eminently fitted him to be one of the pioneers in beginning and carrying forward a new settlement. He died in Scituate in 1673.

KEITH.

Keith. Its origin in Scotland. Brown's Peerage mentions one Robert (from whom this family is supposed to be descended) who was a chieftain among the Cotti from which tribe the surname of Keith is said to be derived. He was at the battle of Panbridge in 1006, A. D., and slew Camus, a general of the Danes for which service King Malcolm drew red strokes or pates on Robert's shield, which was the origin of their armorial bearings. In 1010 he was made hereditary marischal of Scotland, and was presented with a barony and also with the Island of Inchheith in the Firth of Forth. His descendant, Sir William Keith, married a dau. of the Earl of Crawford, and had a son, William, who was created Earl of Marischal before June, 1458. The title descended lineally to William third, Earl, who had two sons, Robert and William. Robert was slain at Flodden Field. William had a son William, who was the fourth Earl, and he had a grandson George, fifth Earl, and founder of Marischal College at Aberdeen. He married Lord Humes' daughter. The tenth Earl, George, was a Col. in Queen Anne's Guards. His brother James was a Field Marshal in the service of Peter the Great of Russia, and later served in the same rank in the Prussian Army. He was killed at Huckkirch in battle with the Austrians in 1758, and a monument was erected to his memory by the King of Prussia.

Rev. James Keith, the founder of the family in America, was born at Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1644, and came to this country in 1662. He was introduced to the church in Bridgewater, Mass., by Dr. Increase Mather, and was settled as its pastor on Feb. 18, 1664, and preached his first sermon from Jeremiah, first chapter, sixth verse. The house in which he lived, still stands in West Bridgewater. He died July 23, 1719. His first wife was Susanna, dau. of Dea. Samuel Edson. They were m. May 3, 1668. She d. Oct. 16, 1705, age 65.

From Winthrop's Journal, Page 111, by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, Mass., 1853.

Mo. 9, 22d, 1642:

There arrived at Boston a small ship from the Madeiras with wine, sugar, etc., which was presently sold for pipe staves and other comodities of the country, wich were returned to the Madeiras; but the merchant himself, one Mr. Parish, staid divers months after. He had lived at the Madeiras many years among the priests and Jesuits, which they warned him when he came hither, that those of New England, were the worst of all heretics, and they were the cause of the trouble in England, and of putting down the Bishops there. When he went away he blessed God bringing him hither, professing that he would not lose what he had gotten in New England for all the wealth in the world. He went away in a pinnance built here, intending a speedy return. By the way, his pinnance (being calked in the winter) proved very leaky. So all the seamen being tired out with pumping, gave her up, till it pleased God, they espied land, and so they came safe to Fayal.

It is most likely that Winthrop refers to John Parris of Barbadoes. The author can only give what came into his possession from his mother regarding the earliest Parris families to Thomas, who came to New England, in 1683. Of the following family, there is no mention of father or mother. The children were all living in 1660. This is learned by the will of John Parris, Esq., of Barbadoes, and they were probably all born in England.

CHILDREN:

Thomas Parris of London.
John Parris of Barbadoes; d. between 1660 and 1669, leaving no children.
Richard Parris; d. leaving a dau. Sarah.
Margaret Parris.
Rebecca Parris.

THOMAS PARRIS[1] of London, b. perhaps 1630. Little can be learned of his sons except two were ministers.

CHILDREN:

John Parris, b. perhaps 1651, in England.
Samuel Parris, b. 1653, in England; was a minister at Salem, N. E.

JOHN PARRIS[2], (Thomas[1]) b. in England perhaps 1651, son of Thomas Parris of London. He was a minister of the dissenting church at Ugborough, 12 miles from Plymouth, Eng.

CHILD:

Thomas Parris, b. perhaps 1665, in Ugborough, Eng.

THOMAS PARRIS[3], (John[2], Thomas[1]) son of John and —— Parris, sailed from Topsham, Eng., June 28, 1683, to New England, went to Long Island, where he m. Mary Jacklen, and moved to Boston as early as 1685. Boston Records gives death of Mary, wife of Thomas Parris, Aug. 13, 1693.

CHILDREN:

Mary Parris, b. May 27, 1686, in Boston, Mass.; m. Sept. 17, 1714, James Gardner, by Rev. Benj. Colman.

Elizabeth Parris, b. July 10, 1693, in Boston, Mass.; d. Aug. 22, 1693. (Boston Rec.)

In 1697, Thomas Parris located in Duxbury, Mass. (now Pembroke), where he married 2d, Abigail Rogers, b. dau. of Joseph and Abigail (Barker) Rogers of Hingham, Mass., and later of Duxbury. Mrs. Abigail Parris d. Dec. 11, 1713.

CHILDREN:

Samuel Parris b. May 16, 1697, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. Ruth Bonney; moved to Middleboro, Mass.; he d. 1730.

John Parris, b. Nov. 24, 1698, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. —— Bearse.

Thomas Parris, b. May 8, 1701, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. Hannah Gannett.

Elizabeth Parris, b. Feb. 27, 1703-4, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. Ebenezer Bonney.

Moses Parris, b. June 9, 1707, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. Mary Bosworth. No children.

Ann Parris, b. May 4, 1709, in Duxbury, Mass.; m. Edward May.

Mercy Parris, b. Sept. 1, 1712, in Pembroke, Mass.; m. Mark Keith of Easton, Mass.

Thomas Parris m. 3d, Grace Record, Jan. 31, 1714-15, widow of John Record of Pembroke; m. by Rev. Daniel Lewis of Pembroke.

He was selectman of Duxbury in 1710. The west part of that town was incorporated Pembroke, March 21, 1712. In 1713 he was town clerk of the latter town. In 1716 he was again chosen to that office and continued as clerk to 1733. In 1722 was selectman and constable in 1738. He was the first school teacher in Pembroke, 1712. He had lands and a dwelling east of Pembroke Town Hall, before 1706, as shown by deed to Abraham Pierce, and bounded by Thomas Parris land, and path to his house. There is nothing on record at Plymouth of purchase or disposal of his home place, but by discription of deed of 1706, and one of 1730 it is a safe conclusion that he lived on the Gideon T. White place, and more recently known as the Nath'l Bosse place. The road from the Town Hall going east to the above place, was without doubt the path from Thomas Parris to the Meeting House as given in deed of 1730. There is no record of settlement of his estate; yet he was a land holder to considerable extent, and deeds of transfer from him are found. He died in Pembroke, Mass., in 1752. (See John Rogers gen. by J. H. Drummond. His widow, Grace Parris, d. before March, 1754. See settlement of her estate.)

In 1706 agents of Duxbury sold to Isaac Pierce, Senr., common land, eleven acres for 4£, 8d. Beginning at White oak tree, being corner bound of Abraham Pierce, Jr., then west, about 24 rods to stake; then ranging south 33 rods to walnut tree, being Thomas Parris corner bounds; then bounded by Parris's land till it comes to the path that goes from s'd Pierce's house to s'd Parris's, and then is bounded by said path downwards about 68 rods till it comes to a red bush, marked on four sides, standing on north of said path, and from s'd bush north about four rods to a red oak tree, marked on four sides, and then bounded by his former land till it comes to white oak tree first mentioned. (Duxbury Common lands, Page 82.)

Abraham Pierce of Pembroke sells to Thomas Burton of Duxbury, 25 acres, in Pembroke, beginning at a white oak stump at southwest corner of field fence, then ranging north by land of Mr. Lewis to white oak tree marked on four sides in ye line or corner of land of Hudson Bishop; then east by land of s'd Bishop to land I lately sold to ye town of Pembroke; then turning south by s'd land to highway, and so south by s'd highway, as it leads before the house and barn to heirs of Daniel Crooker, dec.; then north by s'd Crooker, as fence stands to corner of s'd fence; then west by land of Crooker to bounds first mentioned. Also one and half acres on south side of way, which I bought of the Town of Pembroke, beginning at a stake before the door of the house by s'd highway; then west by road to land of s'd Crooker, 23 rods; then turning south by s'd Crooker's land 15 rods to path y't leads from Thomas Parris, to the Meeting House; then East 22 rods by s'd stake; then north seven rods to first mentioned bound.

Sept. 29, 1730,

(Reg. of Deeds, Plym., Vol. 26, Page 36.)

Elisha Wadsworth,
Thomas Parris,
Witnesses.

We, the subscribers, Seth Arnold, Francis Barker and Abraham Samson agents for the town of Duxbury, Mass., have sold unto Isaac Pierce about six acres of land joining his cousin Abrahams' land, and begins at the head of said Abraham's land, and extends easterly about forty rods to a marked tree, standing in said Abraham's range, and extends from the above said bounds twenty and four rods southerly, to two other marked trees, the westerly tree being a small walnut tree, and the easterly tree a red oak, which trees are the southerly bounds of said Isaac's land, and also four acres and a half joining to his home lot, and is bounded as followeth: On the northerly side with his own land, till it comes to a small red oak marked, standing by Middleborrow Way, and is bounded by said way, southerly to another marked tree standing by the aforesaid way, and from the last mentioned tree, easterly to a white oak tree marked, standing by the way that leads from Joseph Rogers to Isaac Pierce's, and by said way to said Pierce's old lot. No date. Supposed to be about 1715.

Middleborough Way is what is now Centre Street, Pembroke. The above land and Joseph Rogers' house was on the east side of Centre street. Rogers' house stood a few rods east of the Martin Osborne house. The four and one-half acres was north of Roger's house. Evidently there was another way further east, and somewhat parallel, leading from Joseph Rogers', north to Thomas Parris's and Isaac Pierce's.

Thomas Parris of Pembroke, sells to John Wadsworth of Duxbury, one-fifth of forty acres in lot No. 43 of first division of common lands of Duxbury and Pembroke, 1710, conveyed Mar. 13, 1713-14. (Reg. of Deeds, Plym., Vol. 11, Page 120 and 121.)

Thomas Parris, Sr., conveys to Jacob Mitchell of Pem., 35 acres in lot 144, second division of Dux. and Pem., common lands, bounded by land of John Ford's in a swamp to Indian line, and is south corner bound of land of Thomas Parris, Junr's, which he purchased of Jacob Mitchell; then east to Isaac Crooker's land; then northeast to first mentioned bound. (May 1, 1733, Ply. Reg. of Deeds, Vol. 28, Page 57).

There is nothing by which we can locate the home of Thomas Parris, Jr., b. 1701, from the time of his marriage to 1740, but it is presumed that he lived at his father's home at Pembroke Center. In 1740 he purchased land and built a dwelling which is now the Pembroke Town farm. In 1760 his lands extended from near Mt. Pleasant Cem. north to the street at Oldham Pond on both sides of the road, and bounded from Indian Head Pond to Great Sandy Bottom Pond. The following extract of deed gives the original tract purchased and embraces the greater part of town farm. The house now standing was built by Thomas Parris, probably soon after purchasing the land in 1740. It was a one-story dwelling. In 1804 it was made two stories by his son Benjamin, with the purpose of having a school in the upper part. He owned land in different parts of Pembroke.

Book 34, page 177, Ply. Reg. of Deeds:

Thomas Little of Chilmark, son of Dr. Thomas Little of Plymouth, Mass., sells to Thomas Parris of Pembroke a certain tract of land, one hundred acres, in a place called Mattakeesett, in Pembroke, bounded north or west by Josiah Foster's land; south by land formerly Job Randall's, which they bought of Josiah Momontague and Abigail, his wife; west by Indian Head Pond and east by Great Sandy Bottom Pond, being land Dr. Thomas Little bought of Josiah Momontague and Abigail his wife. Dated May 13, 1740.

Vol. 30, page 30, Ply. Prob.:

I, Thomas Parris, of Pembroke, Co. Ply., yoeman. First of all, I recommend my soul into the hands of God, who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be buried in a decent Christian manner, at the discretion of my executor named hereafter. I give unto my son Thomas fifty pounds, to be paid within one year after my decease, out of my personal estate if sufficient for it; if not, then to be otherwise by my executor. I give to my son Elkhanah, fifty pounds, to be also paid within one year after my decease. I give and bequeath to my son Benjamin, whom I hereby constitute and appoint sole executor of this my last will and testament, the whole of my homestead farm, lying on each side of the road; also my cedar swamp, lying in the Major's Purchase, which I had of Nath'l Bonney and others, and all and singular my real and personal estate wherever it may be. Item it is my will that what I give to each of my sons should be given on condition that they do not bring any charge against my estate, and if any, so much to be deducted of what I give; and lastly I revoke all former wills.

THOMAS PARRIS.

Chloe Parris, b. —— in Williamstown, Mass.

These births were copied from R. H. Cook's Manuscript of Williamstown Notes, pages 330-337, at Pittsfield, Mass.

Elkanah Parris was at Williamstown as early as 1753. On Dec. 13 of that year he was in the company of Capt. Elisha Chapin at Fort Massachusetts and served a considerable time, probably to near the close of the war. He returned to his native town, Pembroke, and married his wife at Scituate, returning with her to Williamstown. Soon after he built a house at the easterly part of the village, near Green River. After the Peace of Paris, 1763, he became a Quaker, and was the only family of that denomination in that town. In 1765 he was part owner in a saw mill near his home, and owned town lots 30 and 57, also 63. He was one of the proprietors of Williamstown and moderator of meeting, April 13, 1770, and Dec. 17, 1771. About 1772 he built a dwelling at the "Hopper," near Greylock Mt., 5 miles southwest from the village, and moved from his former house to it with his wife Grace and four children. The frame of the house is white oak. The writer had the pleasure of dining in it in 1909. It is now owned by Stephen Bacon, 3d, and four generations of Bacons have dwelt in it. From the census of 1790 it is learned that Elkanah Paris was living within the borders of Williamstown, whether at that place we cannot say. Owing to church and town records being burned, very little can be got to trace the early families of the town. No doubt much of the records could have been restored by church and town through family bibles and those then living. The lack of interest is no credit to Williamstown that it cannot produce better church and town records. The church was seeking to save souls, but could it not at the same time restored a part of the lost records. So prominent a person as he was in the affairs of Williamstown, it is strange that nothing can be learned of what became of the large family of children and of the going out from this world of the parents, Elkanah and Grace Parris.

Census of 1790: Elkanah Parris, 2 males over 16 yrs., 1 male under 16, 6 females.

At a meeting of the proprietors of Williamstown, lawfully warned and held at the Meeting House in said town, on the 13th day of April, 1770. Voted to choose Elkanah Parris moderator. Voted not to lay out another division of land. Voted to build two pews in the east end of the Meeting House. Voted not to accept the Meeting House as finished. Voted not to relay the meadow lots and fifty acre lots. Not voted.

Mercy Parris, b. Sept. 18, 1768, in Pembroke, Mass.; m. David Sturtevant and Thomas Turner.

Benjamin Parris was of a commanding type—tall, erect, broad shoulders, swarthy features and dignified; of great natural ability, a student and successful school teacher in many towns in Massachusetts and Maine. He was a surveyor and practical business man in the localities where he resided. It is most likely after marriage that he resided at his father's house and four of his children born there. In 1760 he bought of his father 31 acres of land beginning at and on north side of Almshouse Hill, Mattakeesett street, Pembroke, and running north to Foster street and west so as to include all the upland and cranberry bogs of Foster and Lewis. He built a dwelling soon and four of his children were born there. In 1761 he bought an interest in the Easton Furnace, but continued to live in Pembroke until 1773, when he sold his farm to Charles Bisbee and bought a farm same year at Halifax, Mass., near Robbins Pond. He was a school teacher in that town and moderator at town meetings. Soon after the marriage of his son Dan, 1789, he returned to Pembroke on the farm where his father lived, which was conveyed to him by will and is now the Pembroke town farm. His wife d. there Dec. 6, 1814. He d. Nov. 18, 1815. Both are buried at Pembroke Center Cem.

Vol. 47, page 441, Ply. Prob. Extract of will of Benj. Parris of Pembroke, Co. Ply., Mass., yeoman:

First, I give to my loving wife, Milliscent Parris, improvement of one-third of my property, both real and personal, during her widowhood. To my son, Samuel Parris, Esq., I give two hundred dollars. To my son Josiah Parris, gent, I give two hundred dollars. To my son Dan I give a maple desk, my wearing apparel and the one-half of a pew in Halifax Meeting House, with all that he has heretofore had. To my dau., Ruth Andrews, I give one hundred dollars. To my dau. Mercy Turner I give twenty cents, together with what she has already had. To my grandson, Alexander Parris, I give one hundred dollars. To my grand dau., Hannah G. Crooker, I give fifty dollars. To my son, Martin Parris, Esq., I give the residue of my estate, both real and personal, which I now own or possess or shall own or possess at my decease. To him, his heirs and assigns forever, together with what I have given to my wife (after she has done with the improvements), he paying out the above legacies in two years after my wife has done with the improvements. I also appoint him executor. I declare this to be my last will and testament, revoking all heretofore made. B. P.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Alexander Parris, b. Nov. 24, 1780, in Hebron, Me.
Melicent Parris, b. Sept. 10, 1783, in Hebron, Me.

The dau. Melicent lived at her grandfather's, Benj. Parris, (now Pembroke Almshouse). She was drowned Feb. 6, 1795, in Indian Head Pond. She was sent to the store for snuff, (which in those days was used by nearly all persons), instead of going the usual way around the shore, she crossed on the ice, which broke. Her body was found the next morning, the shawl being discovered froze in the ice. She was buried at Pembroke Center, Mass The following is inscribed on her gravestone:

"Many are the shapes of death, and many are the ways that lead to his grim cave. All dreadfull."

ALEXANDER PARRIS[7] (Matthew[6], Benjamin[5], Thomas[4], Thomas[3], John[2], Thomas[1]) b. Nov. 24, 1780, son of Matthew and Mercy (Thompson) Parris; m. April 10, 1801, Sylvina B. Stetson, b. Nov. 3, 1782, dau. of Capt. Isaiah and Lucy (Bonney) Stetson. He was educated in the common schools of Plymouth County, and taught the Central school of Plymouth after Bradstreet and Shurtleff. He became one of the most able civil engineers and architects of the State.

He designed Quincy Market, St. Paul's Church, Massachusetts General Hospital, Custom House and other public buildings of Boston and vicinity. Between 1820 and 1830 he was associated with Col. Loammi Baldwin in building the dry dock at Charlestown Navy Yard. He was appointed constructing engineer of the Navy Yard at Porstmouth, N. H. In 1840 he purchased the estate of Elisha Briggs in the north part of Pembroke, Mass., and resided there. While on his way to Washington, D. C., in the spring of 1852, he was taken ill and was removed to his home in Pembroke, where he died June 16, 1852. Mrs. Parris died Oct. 3, 1853. Both are buried in the cemetery on the hill near their home. During the war of 1812 he was captain of a company of Artificers, stationed at Plattsburg, N. Y. There is a fine portrait of him in the old State House, Boston.

Josiah K. Parris[6], (Benjamin[5], Thomas[4], Thomas[3], John[2], Thomas[1]) b. Aug. 30, 1760, son of Benjamin and Melicent (Keith) Parris; m. July 23, 1788, Experience Lowden of Bridgewater, Mass. She was dau. of Nathaniel Lowden from Duxbury, Mass. They moved to Buckfield, Me., in ——; she d. Jan. 4, 1832, age 63.

Their Children:

Delphina Keith Parris, b. Nov. 24, 1801, in Buckfield, Me.; d. Sept. 10, 1826.

Virgil Delphina Parris, b. Feb. 16, 1807, in Buckfield, Me.

Mr. Parris m. second, Sally Robbins of Hebron, Me. He d. in Buckfield, Mar. 23, 1856, in his 96th year. In 1850, then in his 91st year, he visited Pembroke, Mass., (his former home), with his son Virgil D. He delighted in telling incidents of his experience in the Revolutionary War. At the age of thirteen he was put out to Joseph Bearce, who lived in a house about fifty rods east of the house (now 1899, occupied by C. Washburn), formerly the home of Thomas and Mercy (Parris) Turner, near Silver Lake, Pembroke.

In the family of Virgil D. Parris at Paris Hill, Me., is a wooden cup made by Joseph Bearce, and given to Josiah Parris, when he lived with Bearce in 1773.

See Journal of Josiah Parris: "And in the year 1773, my father put me to Joseph Bearce. There I lived as easy and peaceable as I did in all my days before." He was in the Revolutionary War from Halifax and Kingston, Mass.

Virgil D. Parris[7], (Josiah K.[6], Benjamin[5], Thomas[4], Thomas[3], John[2], Thomas[1]) b. Feb. 16, 1807, son of Josiah K. and Experience (Lowden) Parris; m. Dec. 30, 1833, Columbia Rawson, dau. of Capt. Samuel and Polly (Freeland) Rawson, formerly of Sutton, Mass. He was a lawyer at Paris Hill, Me., held many political places of trust; was one of the promoters of the Buckfield Branch R. R., since extended to Rumford Falls, Me.

CHILDREN:

95 Edward Lowden Parris, b. Sept. 3, 1837.
96 Virgil Keith Parris, b. May 10, 1840.
97 Helen Delphina Parris, b. April 20, 1844; unm.
98 Percival Josiah Parris, b. Jan. 5, 1849; unm.

Virgil D. Parris was a prominent lawyer. He was always a Democrat, and one of the leading politicians of Maine. At the breaking out of the Civil War in 1861, he was Naval storekeeper at Portsmouth, N. H., and took a decided stand against the war. His speeches were such as to injure him in the Democratic ranks, and they could not support him as a party leader. He was one of the promoters of the Buckfield Branch R. R., since extended to Rumford Falls; was a member of Congress. In 1852 was appointed U. S. Mail Agent of the New England states. He d. in Paris, Me., June 13, 1874.
Virgil D. Parris d. June 13, 1874.

Frank, resolute, bold, of firm convictions and honest purpose, through a long and active public life he held his course, upright and unfaltering to the end.

1700, July 2.

Samuel Parris† of Newton, and Dorothy, his wife, for £17 convey to John Giles of "Salem Village" (since called North Danvers) "shoomaker," an orchard in Salem Village, containing about two acres which I purchased of John Shephard in 1691.

† This was Rev. Samuel Parris, formerly pastor of the church in "Salem Village," Mass., in whose family the unhappy "Salem Witchcraft" began in Feb., 1692. He was born in London, 1653; ordained pastor Salem Village, Nov., 1689; left his pastoral charge there in June, 1696. Resided in Concord, Mass., 1704, preached in Dunstable, 1700; died probably in Sudbury, 1720. He did much to promote that terrible delusion.

As a matter of curiosity, though not strictly belonging to the design of this volume, we give the following abstract of the will of this unfortunate man, as recorded. Mid. Prob. 16, 46. The will is not dated, but was proved Mar. 28, 1720.

Will of Rev. Samuel Parris of Sudbury. No wife is mentioned. The testator has five children. Viz: his dau., Elizabeth Barron, wife of Benjamin Barron; dau. Dorothy Brown, and dau. Mary Parris; also sons: Noyes Parris and Samuel Parris. These two sons are minors. Noyes Parris having dedicated himself to learning, shall have his father's library, saving such books as are in English, which shall be divided among testator's three other children, namely: Samuel Parris, Dorothy Brown and Mary Parris. The testator owns part of a plantation equal to twenty acres in the Island of Barbadoes. He has in that island an Uncle John Parris, Esq., who was in 1656, attorney to the testator's father, Thomas Parris of London. This property in Barbadoes descended to the testator from his father as sole heir. He bequeaths to my son, Samuel Parris, my Indian woman, Violett.

Giles Memorial, Page 14:

George Jacobs was hanged at Salem for witchcraft, Aug. 19, 1692, together with Rev. George Burroughs, John Proctor, and John Willard of Salem Village, and Martha Carrier of Andover. These persons were all it is believed, highly respectable. George Burroughs graduated from Harvard College, 1670, and was some time minister of the gospel at Casco, Salem Village, and Wells. Martha Carrier was the wife of Thomas Carrier of Andover. She was convicted on the testimony of her three unnatural children. The scene at the execution was most revolting. Five respectable individuals, all protesting their innocence, were put to a shameful death in the presence of a great multitude, for an imaginary offence, on evidence, which would not now be sufficient to hang a dog:

"The body of George Jacobs was found in the early part of June, 1854, at Danversport, so I was informed a few days afterwards, by a gentleman from that place. That the bones found were those of George Jacobs, was ascertained from the fact that the land where they were found, belonged to him, and has until recently remained in the possession of his descendants. He was an old man, and the bones found were those of an old man; and uniform tradition points to the spot as the place of his interment."

As Chief Justice, Samuel Sewell was called on to sit in judgment on the persons that were tried during the period of excitement over witchcraft, but some time after, and people began to realize the nature of the delusion that had possessed them, Judge Sewell was a great enough man to make public confession of the part he played in the prosecution of those unfortunate persons who had been accused. This confession was handed to the minister of the South Church, Jan. 14, 1697, and the Judge stood to hear it read, bowing when it was finished. On the question of prosecuting the witches, the magistrates, according to an old custom, asked the advice of the clergy, who in part recommended caution, and in part speedy and vigorous prosecution. The notable part about Judge Sewell's relation to the thing, was less his concurrence in the prosecution, than his subsequent confession in public, at the time of the trial, 1692, he was forty years old.

Thomas and Mary Parris of Cambridge, N. E., had Thomas, 1641; Mary, 1643; John, 1645. He gave a mortgage of his houses in Barbadoes, 1650; it secures £650 to be paid in Lombard street, at the Green Dragon, London.

John Parris m. Mary Judd at Braintree, N. E., Aug. 30, 1663.

Samuel and Elizabeth Parris had Thomas, 1681; Elizabeth, 1682; Susanna, 1687.

"Thomas and Mary Parris of Boston had Mary, 1686; Mary, 1687.

Thomas and Elizabeth Parris had Elizabeth, b. at Boston, N. E., July 10, 1693. (Boston Records.)
